POLICE ON DUTY AT CAPITOL

Hall of Flags Balcony Closed, and Officers Hunt for Suspects as the Governor Greets Public

Elaborate police protection was given to Governor and Mrs. McCall at the annual reception at the Hall of Flags, State House, today. Keeping in mind the recent discovery of a suit case containing dynamite on the steps of the State House, the police officials threw a dragnet around the historic building, and orders were given to hold up and search every person entering the building with a package.

In addition to the fifty men stationed at various parts of the building, Chief John H. Plunkett of the state police had a large force of plain clothes men on duty. Regarding his attitude in the matter, Chief Plunkett said:

"My men are instructed to watch for anybody carrying a suitcase or a package. In addition to that I told my men to stop anyone who has a bandaged hand, or anyone acting in a suspicious manner."

The four doors on the third floor of the Hall of Flags balcony were closed today for the first time in many years. Governor and Mrs. McCall stood on the main floor and the police guarded the balconies in order that no one could reach them.

Sergeant-at-Arms Thomas F. Fedrick had his men stationed on each floor and at each entrance.

GREET WAR VETERANS.

Adjutant-General Alfred A. Weatherbee of the Massachusetts Department, G. A. R., was the first person to shake hands with Governor and Mrs. McCall. He was accompanied by Department Commander Alfred H. Knowles and a delegation of veterans of the Civil War.

The Misses Katharine and Ruth McCall, two of the Governor's daughters, enjoyed the reception for a time from seats of vantage in the Hall of Flags.

Governor George D. Robinson inaugurated the public reception. This was the twenty-sixth. Mrs. McCall was the fourth woman to officiate. Mrs. Curtis Guild, Mrs. Eben S. Draper and Mrs. Eugene N. Foss having preceded her.

Among the foreign consuls at the reception were: William McKissock, vice-consul for the Argentine; Horace N. Fisher, consul for Chili; Birger G. A. Rosenwist, consul for Sweden; Baron G. di Rosa, consul of Italy, and Camillo Santarelli, the Italian vice-consul; Charles C. Dasey, consul of the Netherlands; Demosthenes T. Pimazonis, consul for Greece; J. C. Hamand, consular agent for France; Arthur F. Cushing, consul for Mexico, and Frederick P. Leay, consul-general for England.

Melvin O. Adams, president of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad, who, as usual, one of the first to pass in the reception procession.

Military, civic and fraternal bodies filed in with the great throng. The

Zeppelin Destroyed and Crew of 30 Killed

Paris, Feb. 22.—The German Zeppelin "LZ 77" was destroyed by French high angle guns last night and its crew of thirty men were killed. The destruction of the balloon while it was passing over the allied lines apparently on its way to attack Paris was officially announced here today. The Zeppelin was at an altitude of 6,000 feet when sighted and soon the balloon was set on fire.

When the flames reached the car there was a terrific explosion and the balloon was torn asunder. The wreckage began dropping at frightful speed and the men could be seen amidst the flames, trying to throw the remaining bombs from the car. There were a series of other explosions before the remnants of the balloon reached the ground. Thirty bodies were found. The Zeppelin was one of the newest and biggest types.

LATEST WAR BULLETINS.

Copenhagen, Feb. 22.—Four Swedish trawlers, which were leaving the harbor of Gothenburg, were captured by German submarines today.

Vienna, Feb. 22.—The advance of the Austro-Hungarian troops in northern Albania has been resumed after being held up by bad weather, it was officially announced today. Italian troops near Durazzo tried to stem the passage of the Austro-Hungarian troops, but were thrown back.

London, Feb. 22.—The British steamship Dingle, 593 tons, has been sunk by a German submarine. It is believed that all members of the crew except one were killed. The Dingle hailed from Liverpool and was a new boat, having been built in 1914.

Petrograd, Feb. 22.—Russian troops in Turkey, advancing over a front 200 miles long, are within forty miles of Trebizond.

GERMANS PENETRATE FRENCH LINES IN BIG ARTOIS BATTLE

By CHARLES F. SERTELL
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Feb. 22.—The Germans penetrated the first line French trenches over a front of 800 yards (approximately a half-mile) in the forest of Givenchy, in Artois, but were later expelled from the position.

Official admission of the German success in Artois was made today by the War Office in its daily communique.

The attack, which was a very strong one, was carried out after a violent bombardment, which practically wiped out the French defensive works.

Enormous losses have been suffered by the Germans in their attacks north of Verdun. In that region the invaders captured some advanced trenches and some supporting trenches, but were afterwards expelled from the latter.

Mighty forces of men are being thrown forward by the Germans, who have resumed the massed formation at attacks. The text of the official communique follows:

PENETRATED TRENCHES.

"In Artois, after the violent bombardment of the Germans which was referred to in the communiques of Monday, the enemy carried out a strong attack on our positions in the forest of Givenchy and succeeded in penetrating our first line over a front of 800 yards.

"The trenches taken by the Germans had been practically destroyed by the German cannonade. The Germans also succeeded in entering at several points our second line works, but after a counter attack they were ejected from some of the position which they had wrested from us. At the conclusion of the fighting the holdings of the Germans were small.

"The enemy, whose troops in this attack number at least seven battalions, suffered heavy losses from our hand grenades and the fire of our infantry and mitrailleuses.

"To the southeast of Roclincourt the enemy exploded a mine, the crater of which was occupied by us.

REACHED SECOND LINE.

"In the region of Verdun, the activity of the artillery has continued without abatement.

"The Germans attacked on Monday about the hour of sunset. On assault being directed against our position east of Brabant-Sur-Meuse between the Haumet Wood and Hebebois. They succeeded in gaining a foothold in some of our advanced trenches and pushed forward to our second line trenches, but our counter-attacks ejected them from the latter (the supporting trenches) and forced them to retire, leaving in our hands fifty prisoners.

"To the east of Seppois (in upper Alsace) the German attacks were repulsed.

"There has been great activity by the artillery upon the Chapelotte-Ban-de-Sapt front.

"On Monday evening a Zeppelin flew over Luneville and dropped some bombs, but none of them caused any material damage.

"When our aviators ascended to give battle the Zeppelin fled in the direction of Metz."

AMERICAN WOMAN KILLED

Whole Family Is Reported to Have Been Slain by Mexicans in Cusihuiriachic, Chihuahua

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 22.—An American woman with her family has just been murdered by Mexican bandits near Cusihuiriachic, according to a telegram received here today from Madera.

This latest outrage occurred in the State of Chihuahua, and it has been in this State that many of the previous murders of American men and women have taken place.

The telegram said the murdering bandits were former soldiers of Villa.

Upon receipt of the telegram the Carranza authorities here started an investigation and emissaries were sent into the region of the crime.

The report of the murder of an American woman created indignation here today and reawakened the anger that had been quiet during the period of peace of the last few weeks.

The Carranza authorities are giving "reasonably adequate protection" to Americans, Secretary of State Lansing holds. Nevertheless, Texans believed this latest murder would be the subject of inquiry in the houses of Congress as soon as it should be confirmed.

Villista troops are advancing upon Guerrero and the commandant of the garrison there has sent an urgent appeal to Madera for reinforcements. Villista troops have cut the railway and telegraphic communication between Chihuahua City and Torreon.

ITALIANS MOVE TO GARRISON CORFU

By R. MACKENZIE
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

Rome, Feb. 22.—Italian gendarmes have been sent to Corfu to discover the submarine bases declared to exist in the sheltered strait separating the island from Albania, and to repress the running of contraband and espionage exercised by the people of Corfu.

The Italians' work is resented by the local authorities, who profited by the contraband traffic and the espionage which they openly tolerated. This explains the outburst on the part of the member for Corfu in the Greek Parliament. He hoped to frighten Italians from the island.

Instead, I have reason to believe, their number has been increased, with the object of garrisoning the whole island. Austro-German submarines thus will be deprived of a safe base near Avlona, while the Greek government will be compelled to offer apologies for the unparliamentary language of the member for Corfu.

"Honey Darling" Notes Tell of Love Test for Prince

Miss Yvonne Gouraud

By SOPHIE TREADWELL

New York, Feb. 22.—The famous boast of Aimee Crocker-Ashe-Gilligan-Gouraud, now the "Princess" Miskinoff, has always been that she had looked life in the face. In a cold, unemotional courtroom, life stared back at her.

An interesting feature of the hearing has been the reading of the princess' "Honey Darling" letters to the prince, showing that she turned over to her young husband, "to love and cherish forever," her daughter Yvonne.

It was a strange story her young husband, the "Prince" Alexandre Miskinoff, amused, indifferent debonair, told upon the stand. The couple are suing each other for separation. It was a story of the eternal triangle, but twisted at a slightly new angle.

In it his wife, who is sixty, and her stepdaughter, Yvonne Gouraud, sixteen, were the two women struggling for his love. The struggle ended, according to the prince, in a great renunciation scene by the princess, in which she "gave" him the girl.

He said his wife sent him and her stepdaughter away together to Edgemere, L. I., to test their love; to determine if it had an enduring quality.

He said he and Yvonne went to Edgemere last Summer and stayed there for four months, at madame's direction.

Here they discovered their love not to be lasting. And Yvonne, some little time afterward, returned to her stepmother. She was in court, shaking her small blonde head in petulant denial of almost all the statements the prince was making upon the stand.

This unusual "triangle story" has

ORPET FIGHTS TO SECURE LOVE NOTES

Chicago, Feb. 22.—William H. Orpet, the young University of Wisconsin student accused of the murder, by poison, of Marian Frances Lambert, the Lake Forest high school girl, is held for the Grand Jury as a result of the coroner's inquest in the Helms Wood tragedy.

Counsel for the defendant made a determined but unsuccessful effort to get hold of the letters from Orpet to Marian Lambert.

"Those letters," warmly declared States Attorney Dady, "will not be made public now, nor at any other time before the trial of the case in open court."

Attorney Hanna, for the defendant, then declared that certain letters in the hands of Orpet's parents would be withheld in the same manner.

A proposed exchange of letters, those written by the boy to the girl and from Marian to young Orpet, did not appeal to the prosecution.

Six coroner's jurors decreed that circumstantial evidence was sufficient to warrant the Grand Jury inquiry. Counsel for the accused University of Wisconsin student set up the cry that the action was based on "gossipy, hearsay evidence."

"They didn't know," was Young Orpet's calm comment when told of the inquest result as he was being taken from Lake Forest, the scene of the inquiry, back to his cell in Lake County jail at Waukegan.

"There was not a single bit of murder evidence that would be competent in a court of justice," said James H.

EXPRESS TRAINS IN A COLLISION

REPORTED KILLED.
—— Curtiss, engineer, train No. 5.
—— McGinnis, fireman, train No. 5.
——, brakeman, train No. 79.
Unknown man, passenger, pinned under coach.
Unknown woman, passenger, pinned under coach.

At least five persons are reported killed and one hundred injured in a wreck in which three trains were involved on the New Haven near Milford at 11 o'clock today.

One train had stopped on account of air brake trouble, when the Connecticut River Special came along.

The flagman protecting the rear of the first train was struck and killed.

The train then struck the rear end of the first train. Engineer Curtis and Fireman McGinness of the second train were killed.

The boiler exploded, throwing the locomotive on top of a passing freight train.

Two coaches of the first train toppled down the bank of Indian River, but did not reach the water.

The bodies of a man and a woman could be seen pinned under one of these cars.

Physicians and ambulances were hurried to the scene of the catastrophe from Bridgeport and from New Haven.

It is considered certain that there were a number of Boston passengers on the train.

Just how the accident occurred is not positive. The first report was that the Connecticut River Special had run into a derailed freight car near Milford.

At 12:30 a dispatch from New Haven gave a new version. According to this second dispatch, the train was running in two sections. The first section approached the derailed freight car and halted.

While this section was at a standstill, according to the later report, the second section came along and ran into the rear end of the first section.

After this, it was added, a freight train ran into the rear end of the second section.

The first section left New Haven at 10:39. The second followed ten minutes later.

The officials of the company at New Haven said at 12:30 that they had no detailed information on the wreck.

PRINCE HAD A LOVE TEST

the addition of a genuine sixteen has the always interesting Madame Miskinoff added to her already lengths list of surprises by announcing whether at birth. The petition solemnly swore she was the mother of a six-months-old girl named Verona.

The princess, in her petition for separation from the prince, says she is to such child. She asks the court to establish the non-existence of the little princess.

The prince also is suing for separation, each alleging cruelty. If it is proof that Madame Miskinoff is indeed the mother of such a baby, the girl will have always a "courtesy" infant in her fortune.

"ADOPTED DAUGHTER."

The existence or non-existence of this baby thus becomes the point of contention first in the legal fight.

But the dramatic interest all centered in the extraordinary story of Madame Miskinoff's "giving" her adopted daughter to her husband.

"Mamma said," according to Miskinoff, "it is absolutely necessary for Sonia go to Edgemere with Verona for a little while. You and will hilarself if you are not willing to pay her. You must go away and I warrange the divorce. Then you canarry her."

"I tolher," he went on, "that I did not nt to go away with Yvonne, because I did not love her, and, anyway, in country—in Russia—it is not the stom for a man to marry a woman and then to marry her daughter. But madame insisted, and I did it ra favors to her."

He wranked what allowance he demanded of his wife for this favor of giving her to marry her daughter, and swered easily:

"Neths at all. Whatever she wished."

WAR SUMMARY

The Russian advance in the Caucasus was not of sufficient importance yesterday to warrant any official statement from Petrograd. Unofficially, the Russians are approaching Trebizond on the one hand and Bitlis on the other, and the Turkish army is pictured as a series of shattered and disorganized units.

As a matter of fact, there is no reliable indication that the Russians have done more since the capture of Erzerum than to consolidate their positions in that locality. It would be almost impossible for them to do more than this, considering the great difficulty of transporting ammunition and supplies to their armies in Turkish territory.

It is still too early to form any opinion as to what the Russians will next attempt—whether a drive to the south toward the Bagdad railroad, or a march westward toward Constantinople.

In Albania, Durazzo is now completely surrounded, the Albanian troops co-operating with the Austrians having reached the sea west of Kavaya and south of Durazzo. Progress toward Avlona was made, and the ring about Durazzo was tightened.

Germans attempted an attack south of the Somme in France, but were repulsed. Otherwise the situation in France and Flanders was marked by no considerable activity.

Austrian planes again raided northern Italy. Berlin asserts that the air raid on Lowestoft and British coast towns of a day or two ago resulted in the destruction of important property, including gas tanks and harbor works.

The French destroyed a Zeppelin in the Argonne, causing it to explode, by scoring a hit with an incendiary shell.

England has voted another two billion and over for the war.

of his Russian shoulders. "there is love and love."

"Well" insisted the attorney, "did you love your wife at this time?"

"Naturally, or I would not have remained with her."

"And did you love Yvonne, too?"

"Yes, but that was the love of a man for the daughter of his wife."

"Well, was this love for Yvonne hot or cold?" insisted Mr. Lawrence.

"It was medium," smiled the prince.

Letters were introduced in evidence that were written by Madame Gourand during the months she was alone while her daughter and young husband in Edgemere were determining the status of their love.

These letters all indicate a genuine grief over the loneliness. She began them all, "Hanes Darling."

When asked if she ever replied to these missives, the prince acknowledged that he did if Yvonne wasn't around.

If Yvonne knew he was writing letters to her mother, then did apparatus were going to a jealous rage, he testified.

Discover Fire on British Liner at St. John, N.B.

St. John, N. B. Feb. 22.—A fire of unknown origin was discovered in the refrigerator plant of the British steamer Arracan, lying in the outer harbor, early today.

Aid was summoned, and two hours and it was reported that the blaze was under control. It was believed that the damage caused was slight.

The Arracan sailed from Liverpool on January 17. The steamer had taken on a new cargo at this port and was ready to sail when the fire was discovered. A number of vessels with the usual fundamentals of international law.

The administration especially is anxious that Senator Stone shall clear up the suggestion that there have been sudden changes in foreign policy, and he will detail his speech to show every phase of the international situation.

U-Boat Warning to Liner's Passengers

By International News Service.

New York, Feb. 22.—American citizens who have booked passage on the French liner Espagne, scheduled to sail from this port for Bordeaux on Thursday, have received anonymous letters calling attention to the new submarine policy and warning one to embark, according to information received by officials of the British consulate in this city.

Mrs. F. Banker Hillton of East Sixty-third street is one of the Espagne's prospective passengers who received a warning. It read:

Madame—It is understood that you sail within the next few days upon the steamship Espagne for Bordeaux, France. You are doubtless fully aware of the intended submarine policy which is to come into effect any day and which will be carried out rigorously, irrespective of the nationality of persons upon the vessel attacked.

Therefore, assuming that you are aware of the unusual and unnecessary danger that you are to subject yourself to, you are requested to receive this warning as definite and unquestionably necessary and which you are requested not to question but to accept for the safety of yourself and that of your family.

British officials recalled the advertisements inserted b fore the sailing of the Lusitania on her fatal trip. These advertisements warned her passengers not to embark.

British officials here got possession of the letter and sent it later by special delivery and registered mail to Ambassador Cecil Spring-Rice in Washington. They stated to a reporter that other Americans who had booked passage on board the Espagne for her coming trip had called up the British consulate, read exactly similar letters to them over the telephone and asked for information of their meaning.

PUBLICITY CRONES IS ON POLICY OF U. S. HUNTED HERE

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Feb. 22.—Publicity is to be given the Foreign Relations of the United States Stung by criticism, much of which his close advisers declare is without foundation, President Wilson intends taking the public into his confidence on a number of vital questions.

This will be done through the medium of speeches on the floor of the Senate and House by Senator Stone and Representative Flood, chairmen respectively of the Senate and House Foreign Relations Committees.

Secretary Lansing held a half hour's conference with the President at the White House this morning on the matter. It was understood that he went over the data compiled with the President and it was agreed to throw it all over to Senator Stone for use on the floor of the Senate at once.

Stone is to be made the real spokesman and champion of the administration. He will defend its policies, of course. Following a series of conferences between the President and the administration leaders, Secretary of States Lansing has prepared an enormous mass of data.

It includes an explanation of every step taken in the international relations of the country. Especially does it endeavor to show that at no time has the United States departed in the slightest degree from the letter and the spirit of international law.

Where an effort was made to arrange a modus vivendi with at the outset of the war, when an unsuccessful effort was made to define the area of hostilities, and at the present time, when an effort was made to secure an agreement on the submarine armed vessel question, this government made it plain that such efforts were not based on international law. Any agreement reached, it was specifically set forth, must be for the "period of the war" and did not affect the fundamentals of international law.

The administration especially is anxious that Senator Stone shall clear up the suggestion that there have been sudden changes in foreign policy, and he will detail his speech to show every phase of the international situation.

Search for Jean Crones, the Anarchist who attempted to poison the guests at the banquet to Archbishop Mundelein in Chicago, was renewed in Boston and other New England cities last night and today as a result of a taunting telephone message received by the telephone operator of the Boston AMERICAN from a man who declared he was Crones.

Meanwhile, in New York, similar messages, and even letters, all purporting to come from Jean Crones himself, were throwing police and detective forces into flurries of activity. The police of Chicago, who have intercepted genuine letters from Crones to his intimates, declare that the chief has either returned to some Chicago hiding place, or is already on his way back to Chicago.

TELEPHONES THE AMERICAN.

The most recent telephone taunt, received by the switchboard of the Boston AMERICAN, started the night telephone operator at 7:30 last night. When she plugged in under a light she nearly fell off her chair to hear a man's voice, in broken English, saying:

"I am Jean Crones."

The operator, pretending she did not understand, repeated her "Hello," meanwhile rushing through an emergency call to police headquarters on another line, and on a third line began ging the telephone company to trace the call before "Crones" could break his connection.

"I am Jean Crones," came the voice. "Oupit it," replied the operator, sparring for time.

"Jean C-r-o-n-e-s, Crones," the voice repelled out, then in the most vaguely accented way that made it difficult to understand clearly just what he was saying, rattled on, "the Chicago police are after me; I am on my way to Chicago, and I will get every Catholic I meet."

Then the click over the wire told that "Crones" had hastily hung up, breaking the connection.

On account of the hurried way in which the man spoke, and because of the queer accent, the operator was uncertain whether the word said "Fitchburg" or "Bangor." She was positive, however, that it was either Fitchburg or Bangor.

Police were raced to both railroad stations immediately. But the telephone company failed to trace the call before the connection was broken. All the help the company operators could give was the information that the call probably came from a "pay station somewhere."

POLICE AT STATION.

Although the police were confident that the person telephoning was not Crones, yet every precaution was taken, and a thorough search made for the self-confessed soup-poisoner.

They arrived at the North Station soon after the train to Bangor had pulled out, at about 7:35 p. m. Requisitioned but no one duty in the depot reported that they had seen no one looking like the widely-sought Anarchist.

The train to Fitchburg left at 7:45. This is the Montreal express, arriving in Fitchburg at 9:10. It was held at Fitchburg for the police to look over every person on the train, or leaving it. The police were on guard even as the train yard, where it might have been possible for a man to have dropped off while the train was slowing down inside the yard limits. The hunt was in vain.

The search at the South Station was also in vain. Telephone operators on duty at the pay stations in both depots were questioned with the idea that the call might have been put through their boards, but if the AMERICAN was called from either station, at that time, the person calling talked over one of the instruments connecting directly with the central telephone exchange.

As with the Fitchburg train, instructions were telegraphed by the Boston police to the police in Bangor to search the train arriving there at 2:35. Men, women and children were awakened when the sleepers pulled into the depot. Not only was no person resembling Crones found, but none of the train crew could remember any passenger boarding or leaving the train between Boston and Bangor who resembled the anarchist in the slightest.

The train crew especially were questioned. They accounted for every passenger who left the train before its arrival in Bangor, practically excluding the Bangor train as a possibility.

NEW YORK POLICE FOOLED.

In both cases the police arrived on the scene within a few minutes. They found the station the first time and the restaurant the second, but no Crones.

Meanwhile, "Crones" was calling up an afternoon paper in New York. He apologized for not visiting the office the day before, as he had promised, but said a friend had told him it would be foolish. He then said he would hang around town until Thursday. He denied he wrote letters received by the police and New York American on Sunday. He blamed people who are "trying to get notoriety" in his case. In the latter class he placed his brother Paul.

800,000 Armenians Have Been Massacred Says Viscount Bryce

By International News Service.

Paris, Feb. 22:

"THE Armenian people have suffered more than any other race in the world and already at least 800,000 of them have been massacred," said Viscount Bryce in an interview here today. Viscount Bryce, former British ambassador to the United States, is the head of the English committee for the relief of the Armenians.

"Since the war began the Armenians have been the victims of both religious fanaticism and cold-blooded cruelty," continued the English statesman. "They have suffered more than the world knows at the hands of the brigand government of Turkey. But peace terms will give the Armenians freedom.

"I am sure that the American people sympathize with the allies' cause and this feeling of friendship for us is heightened by the knowledge that we are trying to help the Armenians."

United States army and navy officers marched in together. Sons of the American Revolution preceded a juvenile division known as St. Mary's Cardinal Cadets. Sheriff Quinn and his court officers were just ahead of the Loyal Legion. The Highland Dress Association, the British Naval and Military Veterans and the Charitable Irish Society marched in that order, and then came the Knights of St. Flubar, followed by the Daughters of 1812.

Boston Lodge of Elks, marshalled by Exalted Ruler J. J. Hurley, presented the usual big delegation, attired in conventional afternoon dress. The Society of the Cincinnati, the Ancient and Honorable Artillery, Lexington Minute Men and the First Corps Cadets preceded the foreign consuls in Boston.

LETTER CARRIERS IN LINE.

The letter carriers, several hundred of them, came as usual, also the police and a detail of firemen. The Catholic Clubs and the Kearsarge Association were among the other prominent bodies in line.

During the intervals the unattached public marched in to be greeted by Governor and Mrs. McCall. The bankers and lawyers walked beside the laborers and artisans. Supreme Court justices and distinguished legislators marched with them. Proud fathers and happy mothers brought the children along.

The procession began at 10:30 o'clock. It ended at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The guard was composed of the State House newspapermen, headed by Raymond L. Bridgman, who has been "reporting" there now nearly forty years.

The music was by the Naval Brigade Band. Several organizations brought their bands with them.

Governor McCall was attended by a staff consisting of Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole, Adjutant-General; Chief of Staff, Captain John A. L. JUDGE DISMISSES SUIT FOR BILLION

Portland, Me., Feb. 22.—The suit brought by Lewis J. Marshall of Lisbon Falls against Sir Cecil Arthur Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, in which he sought $1,000,000,000 damages for alleged conspiracy to destroy his good name and property as a British subject has been dismissed by Judge Putnam in the Federal Court.

Marshall was recently convicted on a charge of using the mails to defraud in connection with a racketin commission business. He contended that after this action he appealed to the ambassador for protection and that none was offered.

THREAT TO BLOW UP WAR GOODS PLANT

Calais, Me., Feb. 22.—For several nights armed guards have been stationed around the cotton mill in Milltown, N. H., just across from this city, working on allied war orders and owned largely by Calais capitalists.

REPINGTON SEES NO NEAR END OF WAR

By COLONEL REPINGTON.

London Times Military Expert.

London, Feb. 22.—We have stayed the enemy, but have not yet beaten him. The test of battles withheld the decision, because of the practical balancing of forces, and it is our main business to throw more weight into the scales.

We must reckon the German field armies at 3,600,000; Austrians, 1,500,000 to 2,000,000; the Turkish and Bulgar armies at about 1,000,000. The immense superiority we possess is not such as to promise a decisive victory, judging from merely the numerical point of view.

On the other hand our reserves or potential reserves are superior. If we take 2,000,000 of the German figure of reserves or from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 for the Austrian and make due allowance for the reserve Bulgaria and Turkey may still be able to bring forward, it is certain that we allies can do much better.

We in the three islands have nearly as many men at home as abroad, and a third force, about equivalent in numbers to Canada, is assumed to be available under the Derby scheme.

Thus we alone have reserves nearly equal to those remaining for Germany and Austria, and our great task this year is to bring them forward for the field.

France has not yet used her 1916 and 1917 classes at the front, while she has other men at depots and older men who might be called upon. Italy, the very man at the front, has two in the depots and another not called on. Russia has actually trained and available directly, with the ready, as many reserves as Germany and an immense number still behind.

Thus we have on the whole, leaving the overseas possessions of the allies aside, a great preponderance of reserves, and the result of the war will depend largely upon the manner in which these are utilized during the months ahead.

HOW TO GET RID OF DANDRUFF

This Home Made Mixture Removes Dandruff and Stops the Hair From Falling Out.

The following simple recipe which can be mixed at home or put up by any druggist, will quickly remove dandruff and stop the hair from falling out:

To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, 1 small box of Barbo Compound, and ½ oz. of glycerine These are all simple ingredients that you can buy from any druggist at very little cost, and mix them yourself. Apply a few times each day for two weeks, then once every other week until the mixture is used. A half pint should be enough to rid the head of dandruff and kill the dandruff germs. It stops the hair from falling out, and relieves itching and scalp disease.

Although it is not a dye, it acts upon the hair roots and will darken streaked, faded, gray hair in ten or fifteen days. It promotes the growth of the hair and makes harsh hair soft and glossy.

URGENT DEFENCE PLEAS

By L. V. B. RUCKER,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, Feb. 22.—Urgent pleas for preparedness were voiced here today by members of the National Defence Society, who celebrated Washington's Birthday with a luncheon.

"No one would go thoroughly appreciate the need of adequate preparedness for national defence as Washington," said David Jayne Hill, president of the advisory board of the society and former ambassador to Berlin. "From the day Washington undertook the command of the Continental army until it finally was disbanded, there never was a moment when resistance was completely organized. At no time did he have under him for service a number of men equal to the regular troops that confronted him."

Henry Reuterdahl "paid his respects" to Secretary of the Navy Daniels in no uncertain words. He denounced as absurd the secretary's refusal to allow Rear Admiral Fiske to address the luncheon. "I announce," he said, "the idea that a naval officer of Admiral Fiske's high standing, by addressing a reputable and patriotic society on a professional matter would be guilty of talking politics.

"Admiral Fiske is absent, but his words of warning are still in print. He says: 'Every country that has a satisfactory navy has acquired it as a result of a far-seeing naval policy, not as a result of opportunism or chance.'"

Charles J. Bonaparte, former Attorney-General, said:

"Two plain and momentous lessons have been taught to the world by conclusive and terrible experience during the war. The first is that the only thing is that no observance of neutrality, however scrupulous, and no treaty guaranty, however solemn, will avail for one moment or be worth so much as a grain of sand, to protect a weak nation from unprovoked and unjustifiable aggression.

"The second is that adequate preparation for war is not a matter of weeks or even months, but a matter of years, and that inadequate preparation is little better than no preparation at all."

A unique plea was made by William W. Hodkinson, head of a moving picture company, who urged that the "movies" be used to promote preparedness. He said that the public could be reached more quickly with a vital idea through the films than in perhaps any other manner.

Ford Denies He'll War on Preparedness

By HELEN BULLITT LOWRY.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, Feb. 22.—Henry Ford, who is in New York for the first time since his return from the Ford peace expedition, denied today that he was planning a $1,000,000 campaign against preparedness for war.

"Why, really, really, I haven't what you could call plans at all," said he. "I'm just letting events take care of themselves. You understand, don't you, if anything turns up to do I'll do it, but I have not thought about what it will cost.

"I am waiting until Gaston Plaintif returns from Europe on Thursday to consider any sort of a program. But you know I never make public statements."

"I have been having a splendid time ever since I came back," said Mr. Ford, shaking the problems of peace from his shoulders. "I'm also working on my tractor and it has been great fun."

In short, factors seem to agree with Henry Ford more than does peace. He looks years younger than when on the expedition.

SAYS BRITAIN SEEKS MORE SEA POWER

By International News Service.

Berlin, Feb. 22.—Herr Zedlitz, a member of the Prussian Diet, in a speech in that body today declared that England's object in the war was no longer to avenge the invasion of Belgium, but to crush German commerce and make more secure her position as mistress of the seas. "The economic interests of Germany and Austria are so closely linked that they must act in their demands as one when it comes to peace terms," declared Herr Zedlitz.

STAGE PEOPLE MUNDO BURIED; IN FIRE TRAP; EULOGY BY FIVE PERISH CARDINAL

New York, Feb. 22.—Five persons, four men and a woman, perished in a fire which destroyed a theatrical boarding house at No. 155 West Forty-fourth street today.

Thousands of persons, who jammed Forty-fourth street all the way to Broadway, witnessed thrilling rescues of twenty-five persons.

Four bodies were found upon the third floor after the blaze was extinguished. The fifth victim, a man, lost his life while trying to make his way to an adjoining building. All were theatrical people.

The ground floor of the building is occupied by a restaurant.

The fire started on the second floor and before the alarm had been turned in it had cut off the exits. By the time the firemen arrived on the scene about twenty-five chorus girls and actors were at windows on the upper floor, some of them preparing to jump.

Before anything could be done the fire the firemen and policemen began rescuing the terror-stricken inmates of the building.

One young woman, in the presence of the thrilled spectators, made her way along a twelve-inch ledge on the fourth floor to an adjoining building.

NEW MOVE IN MOHR CASE

Providence, Feb. 22.—In the growing conviction that Mrs. Elizabeth F. Mohr must again stand trial, this time on the indictment for murderous assault on Emily Burger, "the other woman" of the murder trial, Henry Spellman, the colored stableboy, becomes the centre of interest because of the possibility of his turning State's evidence.

Spellman's attorney, John B. Edwards, planned to visit Spellman today at the State Prison at Howard to learn the colored boy's wishes in regard to the suggestion being made that it is still not too late for him to follow the example of George Healis, driver of the death automobile.

Sentence has not yet been passed on either Spellman or Brown, and authorities here declare that the Attorney-General's wishes will have great weight until after sentence is passed. It is claimed that Attorney-General Hive could practically not press the murder charge, in spite of the conviction by the jury, in case Spellman turns State's evidence.

It was learned today that both Brown and Spellman would have been willing to plead "nolo" to the charge of manslaughter and that the Attorney-General would have accepted such a plea from Spellman, but not from Brown. Because the negotiations were made to include Brown with Spellman; they fell through.

UNREST QUIETED, SAYS PETROGRAD

By International News Service.

Copenhagen, Feb. 22.—The political unrest which has been manifest in Russia during the past six months has been greatly allayed recently, says a dispatch from Petrograd today. It added that this is one of the reasons the Duma has been convened at this time after being in recess for many months.

Dispatches from Berlin, however, chiefly from the Overseas News Agency, and the Wolff News Bureau, state that the appearance of quietude in Russia appears only on the surface, and that numerous secret arrests are being made.

The Czar, who is now upon the battlefront, is strongly guarded all the time and the guards about the palace in Petrograd are more numerous now than ever before.

TRAGEDIES IN FALSE TEACHING

By DOROTHY DIX.

Whether Marian Lambert killed herself, or was killed by her fashion sweetheart, we do not know.

Probably we will never surely know, for there are a hundred circumstances surrounding this strange and mysterious case that make the one hypothesis as credible as the other.

But if Marian Lambert did commit suicide, she was, without doubt, one more victim of the cruel old superstition that the woman who has once done wrong can never undo that wrong—that she cannot live down a stained past, and "come back," as a man can.

As Stephenson truly says, we "live by catch words," without investigating their truth. And one of the catch words that has been forever on the lips of the world is that "The woman sinned never reforms."

Another is that the girl who has broken the law of convention has "wrecked her life," and that the woman who has stumbled along the straight and narrow way cannot find the way back, though she seeks it with repentance and tears.

EVERY DOOR IS SHUT.

"Once bad, always bad."

"No man will marry a woman with even so much as the suspicion of a stain on the hem of her garments."

"Every door is shut in the face of the woman who has sinned. She is a pariah, an outcast."

So run the old catchwords that we have all quoted a million times, and they have sent more unfortunate women to the grave and pushed more despairing girls down into the gutter than anything else on earth. For they have put the light of hope in a woman's soul and barred the way to reformation with a lie.

We have made the girl who had taken her first wrong step believe that she could not retrace it.

We have told her that if she sinned once she must keep on sinning.

We have said that because of one mistake that she made through ignorance, or through overfaith or overloving, made through what was needless and best in her nature, that she must go through life wearing a brand that no good deed could efface.

We have taught her that just as thinking foolishly and carelessness of youth could shut a woman out from everything that makes life worth living—honor, respect of friends, home, husband, children, a decent position in society.

FALSE TEACHING.

The result of this false teaching has been tragic. It has sent the weak girl, who had been betrayed into wrong-doing, deeper and deeper into the mire, because she had been made to believe that no effort she might make to climb out of it would avail. And it made the strong-hearted woman, who was no Magdalene at soul, commit suicide rather than face the desolation of the only existence she saw before her.

If little Marian Lambert, with her own hands, took her own life, it seems to be probable, from the crystals of cyanide of potassium found under her finger-nails, and the acid burns on her face that looked as if they had been made when she thrust the poison into her mouth, she did it because she believed that all hope was ended, and that, as the catchword has it, "her life was ruined," and that she had not the hope nor the courage for her—no joy, nothing but fear by her to sink to the level of the outcast, or be one of those black creatures who are spoken of as "reformed," and shunned by everyone.

What a pity that there was not someone who could have told her the truth, and that is that a woman can "come back" just as surely as a man can, and that a girl need no more let her life be ruined by the fault of her youth than a boy need. If she has done wrong, let her repent it in tears of blood, but by the knowledge she has gained, by the anguish she has suffered, by the reason her folks have taught her, let her build herself a ladder to climb to the heights of womanhood.

Let not such an expression be, as the ignorant and cowardly make it, a weight to drag her down into the pit.

As a matter of fact, tens of thousands of women have "come back" and they have conformed. They have retraced their steps on the primrose path. They have closed the book of their pasts and made of it a sealed volume. And just as there is no man so strict a Prohibitionist as he who has once been a dipsomaniac, so no woman is so prudent as she who has once been scorched by the fires of passion.

MANY HAVE "COME BACK."

There are women occupying high social positions, women who are eminent in the professions, and who occupy high executive positions in business, women who are loved and honored and happy mothers, who have come back. They have passed through the fiery furnace and have been refined. They have lived such straight and upright lives for so many years that the sad little story of their youthful slip has been forgotten, or is only remembered with a wonder at the nobility of character that could turn weakness into strength and sweetness.

It is significant of the growing humanity of our time that women and men both are coming to look upon their erring sisters with compassion instead of as pariahs, to be shunned and damned. There was a time when the cry was, "Stone the scarlet woman!" Now we say, "Help her to wash the stain away."

This means no lowering of the standard of virtue among women. It simply means that women are saying to their unfortunate sisters as the Master said to the Magdalene of old: "Neither do I condemn thee; go and sin no more."—Dorothy Dix on the Lambert case.

HOLD ORPET FOR ACTION BY GRAND JURY

Wilkerson, former United States District Attorney, who has been retained to defend Orpet.

"All the evidence necessary for the Coroner's Jury was presented," said State's Attorney Ralph Dady. "The State's case was not exposed in this inquiry. It will be put up to the Grand Jury."

Hints of disagreement among the jurors crept from the jury room during the deliberations, which lasted almost two hours. Members of the jury later admitted that there were some who thought they should hear more testimony."

KEPT ORPET FROM STAND.

The defendant was not allowed to testify. His father, E. O. Orpet, manager of the Cyrus H. McCormick estate, and the father of the dead girl, Frank Lambert, were the chief attraction among the day's witnesses.

Young Orpet was saved the embarrassment of refusing to answer all the questions that might have been put to him on the inquest. His attorneys served notice that he would not be allowed to testify and he was not called upon to take the stand.

The jurors must understand, though, that his refusal to take the stand and explain certain things regarding the death is of itself prima facie evidence that must be considered," advised State's Attorney Dady.

In questioning one of the defendant's father, the boy's counsel also interfered with advice regarding answers to certain questions. On their advice the elder Orpet declined to answer all questions regarding what the boy told him of the meeting with Marian Lambert.

Examination of the day's witnesses brought out the fact that State's Attorney Dady had received an anonymous letter to the effect that cyanide of potassium, such as caused the girl's death, was found scattered over the Orpet garage where the young man claimed he slept the night before the tragedy.

"On the morning of the ninth did you or any one else find any cyanide scattered over the garage floor?" Corpet, Sr., was asked.

"Absolutely not," was his answer.

Counsel for the defendant, cross-examining witnesses who included Frank Lambert, William Marshall, friend of the family who was with the latter at the time he located the girl's body; E. O. Orpet, Charles Pellila, Orpet chauffeur, and Chief of Police Walter McGuire, sought to bring out points indicating suicide.

COURTROOM CROWDED.

Much stress was placed on the fact that one bottle was missing and the other was not.

Questions were asked with a view to bringing out the girl's access to the poison that caused her death. Third degree methods in getting Orpet's "confession" at Madison were intimated.

Crowds of Lake Forest people kept the inquest room packed throughout the day. Among them was Mrs. William Busselle of Los Angeles, Cal., who said she was a school-room sweetheart of the accused many years ago.

Orpet's preliminary arraignment on the charge of murder preferred against him will be next Monday before Justice Vickerman at Lake Forest. That procedure will be a formal affair and barring application for release on bail the young man will remain in private until the March Grand Jury has acted on his case.

BUILDS YOU UP

WARNING TO EVERY PARENT IN SAD TALE OF LITTLE SCHOOLGIRL

By LINA CAVALIERI.

The tragic ending of Marian Lambert should be a warning to every mother. Will she heed it? Such tragedies would not occur if mothers gave their daughters proper protection and guidance. This every girl is entitled to.

I have frequently noticed the gulf between the American mother and daughter. There seems to be no companionship. The mother does not take the daughter into her confidence. Things the child should learn at home are discovered outside, and many times with disastrous results.

Every girl should be guided by a mother's hand until she reaches the age of eighteen or twenty. The freedom the American girl enjoys is quite wonderful, but if she is not to be guided through the years when she is young and susceptible how is she to know right from wrong?

Every girl should be watched. I don't mean she should be bossed. Kind mother's affection can accomplish more than all the force in later years.

If I ever have a daughter I will not let her free until she can think for herself and understand when she approaches the danger line. Until she reaches that age I will be her constant companion.

Among the Latin races the mother and daughter are inseparable. This is why the Latin girls are more domestic. They like home life. Whenever they are outside their homes they are accompanied by some member of their family or relative.

Here it is all different. The daughter often leaves the home in the morning and does not return until night. Where has she been during the interim? Mothers have little concern. Soon they have lost even the right to question and if their sins are not brought to them it may be termed good fortune.

The family should select the books the young folks should read. Books are sold as harmful as companions. Some of the present-day books are like poison to the young mind.

I remember not long ago popular electric stories were put on the market in Paris at two cents a copy. Their sale was followed by a noticeable increase in crime. The government attributed this to the novels. With the result that the novels were suppressed.

The mother is not alone to blame for the conditions that exist. The father is responsible for the activities that women are. He does the father give time to instruct the boy? No. He is permitted to drift for himself or simply trusts to luck. It is only when his sons are brought home to the family that they realize their mistake. Then it is too late.

The American father is strictly a business man. He is too busy with his affairs downtown to devote the proper time to his family. He goes out with his family so often that pretty soon all the good influences of home life are lacking.

Every mother, I believe, owes it to her daughter to know whom her companions are and what their intentions are.

If the girl is to keep company with a young man, that young man should be investigated. The family should know all about him.

WILL FIGHT REVEALS TANGLE

The report of Franklin T. Hammond, who acted as an auditor on the appeal of Mrs. Lizzie M. Chapman of Revere from a decree of the Probate Court, which refused her an allowance on the ground that she was not the widow of Hiram T. Chapman, to whom she was married in 1896, has been filed in the Supreme Court.

It will be reviewed by Judge Loring Friday and sent to the full bench at the March sitting.

The case reveals one of the most complicated matrimonial tangles ever brought before the court.

Chapman died August 24, 1914, at Revere, leaving an estate valued at $170,171.80. In his will, which was allowed, he made many private bequests, among which he provided for his two married daughters, Mrs. Ella Cobb of Rochester, N. H., and Mrs. Kate P. Davis of Mount Renier, Md. He then directed his executors, Julieu of the rights of Mrs. Lizzie M. Chapman, to provide generously for her support during the remainder of her life at any place she might desire to live.

WAS TWICE MARRIED.

He explained she had plenty of means of her own, consisting of money in savings banks, a house and lot at Revere, valued at $7,000, and shares valued at $2,000 in the Burrowes Company, manufacturers of billiard balls.

Chapman was first married to Florence Elliott on July 15, 1894. His wife was then living in Lawrence. Later he lived with his wife in Boston.

In October, 1895, they made a visit to the home of the mother of Mrs. Chapman at Hardington, Neb., where they remained until January, 1895, when domestic difficulties arose.

Chapman then left his wife and went to Fargo, N. D. On April 6, 1895, ninety days after his arrival, he brought suit against his wife, alleging cruelty. She was served with a copy of the libel in Fargo and on September 16, 1895, Chapman was granted a divorce.

He remained at Fargo until December, 1895, when he returned to Lawrence. In 1898 he married the woman who now claims to be his widow.

COUPLE ACCUSED OF FRAUD.

In November, 1902, his divorced wife brought a petition in the Nebraska court for separate support. This was dismissed on the ground that she and her husband had perpetrated fraud on the courts of North Dakota in the divorce proceedings. The case was thereupon taken to the State Court of the United States, where the Nebraska court was sustained.

While the petition of Mrs. Chapman was pending in Nebraska, Chapman filed for divorce in North Dakota her in this State.

No action was taken on this libel and on February 7, 1910, Florence brought a libel for a divorce in Nebraska, alleging desertion.

On November 14, 1910, the petition was dismissed, the court deciding it had no jurisdiction in the North Dakota court. On November 23, 1910, Florence married Charles Hough of Springfield, S. D., where she now lives.

In his report, the auditor finds that Mrs. Florence Chapman never acquired a domicile in Nebraska or that neither had a domicile in North Dakota when Chapman secured a divorce. Mr. Hammond further finds that Florence colluded with her husband to enable him to get the divorce and that she was paid $2,500 by Chapman.

And it's only one of hundreds.

Thirty thousand American men and women are publicly praising Doan's Kidney Pills.

Surely it is worth the while of any one who has a bad back, who feels tired, dull, logy and run-down, who endures distressing urinary disorders, to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial.

So. Boston Evidence

Mrs. L. A. Thayer, 350 W. Third St., says: "In the morning on getting up I felt stiff and lame across the small of my back. When I tried to bend over to put my shoes on, sharp, sudden pains darted through me. The kidney secretions were unnatural and caused me much trouble. During the day I felt tired and lacked ambition. I used two or three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and they cleared up the kidney secretions and rid me of the backache."

AUTOISTS OBSERVE MOTOR DAY IN BOSTON

By J. C. KERRISON.

Lonely, at least, Washington's birthday might be changed to motor day. While the country at large celebrates in its particular fashion, the birthday of the "Father of His Country," the local world seems to observe it as motor day, the day on which they may get a more comprehensive view of motor vehicles, studying the new fashions in motor cars and recalling the earlier days when motors and motorists were somewhat of a rarity.

Today, as on the one hour before in the history of the industry, the Boston dealers have made extra efforts to appeal to their visitors and their wares seem to be on display to greater number than ever. It is real, or seemingly what is considered the world at large takes in the Washington's Birthday observance of motor day.

A trip through the motor district today is sufficient to convince one of the value in a business way of keeping open house on Washington's Birthday. The custom has grown from a trickle to no great degree as it is being continued from year to year and its ranks are never, or if any during the show period, seem to be so pleased to observe the custom as it proves itself for the beauty and reliability of their cars.

DECORATE SALESROOMS.

In the majority of instances the dealers made no more than ordinary attempts to decorate the interiors of the building, but in other cases artistic taste was shown in the arrangement of their salesrooms and the entertaining of visitors were made.

Starting at Park square, one found the Chevrolet displaying a fine line of touring and runabout in both open and closed bodies, and progressing in easy stages throughout the district they found the Ford salesrooms on Boylston street and while the plant across the river was busy turning out cars, Branch Manager snow and his assistant were wielding orders for immediate delivery.

The Mitchell display was a rather extensive one, and furnishing cars featured in national colors.

Further along the Clare-Simple was found, and there F. W. Maguire in his particularly attractive salesroom showing many cars, which for years and years has captured the Glidden Trophy, and which since have remained standard.

HURLEY SHOWS PULLMAN.

The Brown-Apperson Motor Company showed the full line of Apperson cars, and the Hendshaw Motor Company made a particularly pleasing observance of the day, for they had entertained the friends and Dodge customers with a motoring picture show, in which was shown pictures of the Dodge plant and scenes of Dodge performances in various parts of the country. Today he welcomed his friends at his salesrooms. The Heilier showed a full line of its latest production.

The Hol-Tyme Company displayed a long line of Westcott and Premier cars, while Harley-Davidson motorcycles at the Saxon salesrooms.

H. F. Hurley, who has returned from a trip through the West, was kept busy all day long explaining the mechanism of the Pullman, which is a stripped chassis of which was on hand.

Manager Mansfield of the Pullman was found most decidedly busy talking of the values and beauties of the last Gliddon Tour of Europe car, which is today being put out in both open and closed cars.

Manager Hurley of the Pullman took great delight in displaying the coupe which is the last form in one of the strong features of his exhibit at the Boston Show. The Pullman Six of the National had its hands full telling of its six and twelve, both of which have made marks reputations for themselves.

ENTERTAIN AT DINNER.

Manager Nothing of the Chalmers Motor Company had on one of customers. Connell & McCone, who handle the long line of Overland cars, found the day all too short to meet their requirements, and at the conclusion of the business hours entertained their salesmen at dinner.

The Oakland found great interest in their six-in-line "Sensible Six" as well as in their larger cars, while J. H. Hudson had on display several hot numbers among the Cole company's line and found no end of interest being exhibited in their eight-cylinder.

John L. Judd, with the line of Auburn cars, was not overlooked, while L. W. Bowman with the Velie and Paniels the latter the latest addition to the Boston motor industrial world, was decidedly busy.

In Jamaica, with a full line of Studebaker, had no cause whatever to find with conditions.

On the corner of the Hudson "Super-Six" and the Peerless and Maxwell lines all had their followings, and each one of them showed their most attractively decorated salesrooms.

EVERYBODY IS BUSY.

The Marmon, with its aluminum plants, was well represented, and J. M. Linscott, with his sturdy lieo, had no time for anything but business.

Spencer Lagerer with the Stoddard-Dayton was busy as a bee.

Otto Lawler with the beautifully designed also-ran Franklin and his Scripps-Booth is convinced as a result of today's performances that there is certainly something in a Washington's Birthday observance.

A large crowd inspected the Chalmers like where Proprietor O. L. Haines, while Joseph Donovan was the central figure at the Studebaker.

L. P. Hewins held forth at the Jeffery, while Joseph Donovan was the most attractive in the city, and Manager Danforth certainly outdone himself on this occasion.

Arthur Hinchcliffe with the long line of Whiting reached his old-time popularity, and Manager Porter of the Locomobile found the day all too short for business purposes.

FULLER CELEBRATES.

The next place to which we come is the Oldsmobile, the salesroom decorated prettily, in which the fours and eights were shown to advantage, and the best was pleasingly displayed at the Wentworth-Pontiac Company.

The White Company had a particularly attractive display of both open and closed cars and a line of trucks and fire apparatus. Manager Hathaway and his men were among the busiest.

The Kissel Kar, with its all-the-year-round car and the 6-in-line was decidedly attractive and the reception they received was particularly pleasing to Messrs. Hubert and Lawrence.

Another busy section of the outer district was that at the junction of Commonwealth and Brighton avenues, where Avery Brothers with their Virginia Four was celebrating his twenty-first year in business, and Manager Johnson, Blanchard of the Cunningham, Anthony of the Imperial and Hamilton of the Hupp all as busy as bees, and surely in a good way to celebrate the day's event. All stations open house is being observed.

The Porter Sales Company, distributors of the Pathfinder and Regal cars, are inaugurating their week of "Pathfinder Week," during which they will be pleased to receive and entertain the dealers and agents of Maryland. The Fish branch motor of the Pathfinder was pleasingly displayed, and Manager Porter of the local company and Sales Manager Slater, distributors of the Regal, were well pleased with the display and the attendance.

Begin Fight on the Rockefeller Foundation Fund

By International News Service.

New York, Feb. 22.

STATE COMPTROLLER EUGENE M. TRAVIS is leading an attack upon the Rockefeller foundation as a quasi-charitable institution.

The foundation was chartered by the State of New York in 1913 with principal funds of $100,045,000.

The comptroller contends that if the courts uphold certain trusts as "charitable" within the meaning of the law governing them, the foundation there is nothing to prevent John D. Rockefeller and his son from putting their vast estates under the management of the foundation, free of taxation. These estates, he adds, would be under the absolute control of the foundation trustees for any use desired.

Through his counsel Mr. Travis has filed an appeal from the report of Transfer Tax Appraiser Joseph W. Sexton, compelling from the foundation $438,582 left to the foundation by the executors of the will of Mrs. Laura S. Rockefeller, wife of John D. Rockefeller.

Attorney Schuyler C. Carlton, who analyzed the report of the foundation from its establishment in May, 1913, points out that the trustees are spending less than one-fourth of the income, which on this basis will amount in 1918, nearly $100,000,000.

Harvard Radio Men as Modern Paul Reveres

The Harvard Wireless Club, at their quarters in the Harvard Union, received at 1:45 a. m. today the wireless message on preparedness flashed over the country in an army speed test.

The message, sent from the Rock Island, Ill., arsenal, was in keeping with the spirit of the holiday. It was 1765, modern Paul Revere plans. Harvard got the message from a relay at Wheeling, West Virginia. The message was received by Messrs. H. P. Henderson, Jr., and E. E. Dalton.

From the Harvard station it was sent to Lexington where it was relayed at the Concord battlefield by Boy Scout.

The sponsors of every State and the Mayors of the larger cities got copies of the message which was flashed to the fourteen governors of the nation inside of forty minutes.

The message read:

A democracy requires that a people who are modern and educated themselves should be so armed and disciplined that they can protect themselves.

Gives Battle to Policeman for Killing Pet Rat

"Can I take my rats to the cell with me?" Sherman Hayden of Quincy asked, after he had been searched and booked at the City Hall police station early today.

"Rats!" What rats?" Patrolman Stewart asked. Hayden produced one big white rat from his sleeve and another from his inside pocket. Patrolman Stewart reached for one; the rat snapped at him, and he knocked it to the floor and killed it.

Hayden was infuriated at the death of his pet and sprang at the officer. A lively rough and tumble follower and Patrolman Carnes separated the two and Hayden was taken to a cell, the other rat being bestowed in a rat-cell to await his master's release.

Hayden was arraigned in Adams square on a drunkenness charge. He is single and lives at No. 116 Elm street, Quincy.

Shepards Take New Foundling Into Their Home

New York, Feb. 22.—Finley J. Shepard and his wife have taken into their home a second child with the intention of adopting it and making it a companion of little foundling whom they took to their hearts and formally adopted on October 22, 1915.

They obtained the child, it is said, through Dr. Henry D. Chapin, who has received in his health many homeless waifs. Infants, for whom he has found foster parents.

It will be placed on an equal footing with their first adopted boy, who is officially known as the court records, "Joe Doe No. 194, alias Austin McCleary," the name he himself when found on the steps of St. Patrick's Cathedral on September 17.

The foster brother, he, too, will be in line for the heritage of the Gould estate.

THEATRES

VARIOUS BILLS IN BOSTON HOUSES

MODERN THEATRE—The two feature films shown for the first time are the William Fox production, William Farnum in "Fighting Blood," and Florence Reed's play, "He Fell in Love with His Wife." William Farnum is shown in one of the virile roles in which he so greatly excels, and every scene of the drama is surcharged with thrilling and full of manly vigor. It tells the story of a man unjustly accused and convicted of a crime through the villainous jealousy of another man, and while in prison he becomes austerely imbued with religion, and on his release he becomes a preacher, choosing for his field the far West. There he encounters the girl he has once married the girl, and who is now the head of a gambling fraction of the underworld's dealings in that section. Follow personal contacts in which the "fighting parson" triumphs, the villain is killed in a brawl and the lovers are united. "He Fell in Love with His Wife" will be next week's offering. E. P. Roe, the prolific English novelist.

OLYMPIA THEATRE—The Ben Shawmut Players present "The Squaw Man" for the first half of this week. The company is greatly augmented, and they give a sterling presentation of this stirring drama of English and American life by Edwin Molton Royle. The leading parts are taken by Doris Olson, William Howard, Carney Christie, Frederick Promde, Augusta Gill, Frederick Murray, Henry Alexander Joseph Wiley, Florence Schaffer and Jessie Hathaway.

GAIETY THEATRE—Variety, novelty and rollicking fun mark the Gypsy Maids performance this week, the show being a well balanced medley of burlesque, vaudeville and extravaganza with a clever company to "put it over." The star comedian is Will J. Kennedy, one of the finest of "Rube" comedians of the stage, who as sheriff wanders on and off with bewildering bits that are sure fire laughs. Jack Miller, his chief assistant, is also a host in himself, and helps him to keep things humming. The prima donna is Miss Lynne Gilbert, a new personality in burlesque and one who has jumped into immediate favor. Others in the cast are Lou Hurtig, musical dancer and soubrette, is a young woman who has a very important part in the show and made good at every stage of the performance. The upper Mall is given to Chicago's leader productions and is put on with all the earmarks of a Gaiety show, having good looks, handsome costumes, sensational stage effects and finely done song numbers.

LOEW'S NEW ORPHEUM—Eight vaudeville features were presented yesterday. The headline honors were given to Keith Wakefield and Company, in a drama entitled, "Spoils of War." This sketch had many startling situations and made a decided hit. Charlie Case delighted with his original monologue. Eddie Clark, assisted by Miss Vera Rosini, scored in their performance. Francis Renault created a surprise by his remarkable personality and her trained leopards performed many startling stunts. Bowers, Walters and Crooker pleased with their popular singing. Donnelly and Dorothy and Frances and Ray also came for a good share of applause. The feature photo play is Margarita Fisher in "Counsel on Cotton." Miss Snow will personally make her appearance on the theatre on Wednesday afternoon and evening and give a short talk about her experiences in movie plays.

PARK THEATRE—"The Black List," a Paramount production in five acts, is the feature attraction with Lenore Ulric in the wonderful title role. Miss Sweet is seen as the American-born daughter of a Russian anarchist, who is the leading spirit of the radical town. The miners of this town had been badly treated, but she finds a way to end the oppression and to get at the cause of bringing better conditions. The modern ballet adds to the charm of the picture. Another feature is "The House of Tears," a tragedy of the Italian quarter of New York, in which a group of wooden society life that menaced future generations. Features also include a metropolitan production in Emily Stevens, who has become very popular with the patrons of the house, and Included on the program are the Burton Holmes travel pictures.

BOSTON THEATRE—"The Midnight Follies," a musical melange with nine people, heads the vaudeville show the first half of this week. Pretty girls, wearing costumes that enhance their beauty, dance, sing and an elongated comedian are the principal ingredients that go to make up the specialty that puts them well among the top-liners in vaudeville. The balance of the bill is largely taken up with dance and flash, a group of blackface comedians with a musical comedy flavor, and a 4-in-1 company, in laughable sketch. The Faynes, a woman with a good voice, and a man who can play the piano and sing, Dunlay and Merrill, with a comedy sketch entitled "Mother," and the Morris Singers complete a bill that is by far the best that the Boston has yet had this season. The picture feature of the usual high standard, with Arthur Hoops in "The Danger Signal" the feature.

LOEW'S GLOBE THEATRE—An all star show full of vaudeville features was presented yesterday to delighted audiences. The headline feature was Billy Tuttle and his college chums in their musical comedy "College Days," which was very amusing. Others to appear were Forrester and Lorraine in a comedy talking skit, Dow and Dow, two Hebrew comedians; Anderson and Evans, in a comedy playlet entitled "On the Rocks." The Berlin Sisters presented their latest song hits, the leading Slaters presented their original dancing specialty, Charlino Brothers performed many clever acrobatic stunts. A splendid list of the latest photo plays were also shown.

O'Malley Jennings, Tyler Brooke, Florence Moore, Elsa Alder, Georgia O'Ramey, Hazel Dawn and Jane Rhodes. She left San Francisco on the Santa Fe Limited last Saturday and the train is due to arrive in Boston Wednesday afternoon. Miss Nielsen left a margin of twenty-four hours in case of unforseen delays. Don't worry. En route, and will be Johnny on the spot Thursday with my voice better than ever. Closed here last night. Sang Antonia in "Tales of Hoffmann." Hurrah. ALICE NIELSEN

Stars for Happy Twenty Cabaret

Among the entertainers already secured by the cabaret committee are Sophie Bennett, Della Tuttle, Billy Gleason, the Feiet Entertainers, known as the "Dancing Fool," comprising Tom Quinn, Abel Baer, Charles Ray and Victor A. Verdi, besides a host of more or less of other first-class artists.

While all this is going on down stairs the fancy dancers will be having their inning upstairs in the main hall. "Alexander's Ragtime Band" is engaged to furnish the music, and will have his full hand on the job.

Many fine novelty exhibitions of modern dancing will be given by some of the best exponents of the art, among whom are Harry Mallor and Margaret Scollins and others.

Dancing starts at 2 p. m. and continues till 2 a. m. A concert from 8 till 9 will also be given. Abel Baer, the secretary-treasurer for the Happy Twenty, will give piano selections.

Boston Society Due for a Jolt

The foibles of Boston society folks will suffer a jolt at the hands of J. W. D. Seymour, an undergraduate actor at Harvard, whose uncle was the stage manager of the old Boston Museum, when the annual performance of the Pi Eta Society takes place next month.

Seymour's bit at society will be a one-act skit which he will stake by himself. His fellow actors in the show, representing numerous "Society Ladies Decides," will represent the audience.

"The Lady Decides" deals with the awakening of a young couple after the honeymoon and the discovery that to find that woman has obtained her desired supremacy and that man, in consequence, has been reduced to a humble social state.

The altered relations of the sexes will give the female impersonators an opportunity to don grotesque clothes and work out many humorous situations.

"The Lady Decides" is a musical comedy in three acts. The book is by J. W. D. Seymour and W. L. Munro, Jr. Lyrics by J. S. Davidson and music by O. A. Gundlach.

Episcopal Group Oppose Sunday

The Episcopal ministers of Boston will not welcome Billy Sunday when he comes here in October. This action was been decided by the Episcopal Association of Greater Boston, which lately refused to hear the Rev. Floyd Tomkins, rector of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Philadelphia, and George Wharton Pepper, friends and supporters of Billy Sunday, speak before their meetings in Boston.

TODAY'S BEAUTY HINT

It is not necessary to shampoo quite so frequently if your hair is properly cleansed each time by use of a really good shampoo. The easiest to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers may be prepared very cheaply by dissolving a teaspoonful of canfarco, obtained from your druggist, in a cup of hot water. This rubbed into the scalp creates a thick lather, soothing and cooling in its action, as well as very beneficial to scalp and hair. After rinsing, the scalp is fresh and clean, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright luster and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy. —Advertisement.

Plays That Remain

MAJESTIC THEATRE—The life of the idle rich in New York, fortune hunting Englishmen, bridge whist and kindred frivolities are all depicted in "Fixing Sister," William Hodge's latest starring vehicle, in which he is now playing his second successful week.

SHUBERT THEATRE—With its wealth of scenery, host of bewitching beauties and challenge cast of principals, "The Passing Show of 1915" is now well launched into the second capacity week of its engagement.

WILBUR THEATRE—The sixth record-breaking week of "Fixing Sister" finds its final fortnight last night in full favor with the highbrow holiday throngs. It is notable what a response the story of the play finds in almost every person's mind, for it deals with a subject attractive trait in all of us, the worship of chance, and it has been productive of considerable discussion.

COLONIAL THEATRE—Last evening Mitzi Hajos entered upon her final week in the new comic opera, "Pom-Pom," in which she has given delight to large and appreciative audiences.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—Henry E. Miller and Ruth Chatterton have been made to feel thoroughly at home and their performance of "Daddy Long Legs" is duplicating in every respect the success which it made on its first presentation here at the Tremont Theatre.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE—With the current performance, "Between the Lines" began its third week. As acted by the Craig Players, this play by Harvard graduates provides a varied amount of entertainment, ranging from comedy to emotional drama, and from farce to rural pathos.

FENWAY THEATRE—Two of the most prominent of Broadway successes head the bill this week. Polly of the Circus, with Mae Marsh as the star, and Jane Cowl and Rowland Lee in "Common Clay" is the second of the Harvard dramatic successes. "New York," featuring Miss Florence Reed, will be shown. In this remarkable drama we have given an inside picture of the life of a Broadway chorus girl, who finds the signal for temptation also opens her stage work insufficient to gratify her desires for fine clothes and pleasures. She is wooed by a young millionaire into believing that she is innocent victim of his all-devouring love and later, after he discovers her true character, she attempts to blackmail him, but in the end finds reality at his own door. During the course of the play Theatre-goers are taken through many of New York's famous pleasure resorts and are treated with many beautiful scenes, amazing situations and thrills.

EXETER STREET THEATRE—Today and tomorrow Theodore Roberts appears in a photo-play adapted from Mark Twain's famous novel, "Huckleberry Finn," which lends itself admirably to the screen, for in addition to the quaint atmosphere of the South, it abounds in interesting and exciting situations. "Huckleberry Finn" and Tom Sawyer and Ward will be shown in "Tennessee's Partner," suggested by Bret Harte's well known story.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure and Eat Less Meat.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and pass it off in the urine. The poison cast it out in the urine. The poison of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity, in damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well. —Advertisement.

KEITH'S SHOW IS ONE OF MANY HITS

THE SHOW AT KEITH'S is as fast as a rifle shot. Among its big hits are Four marvelously pretty girls "singing Southern songs of the sixties," the young ladies dress in scenes of the period, including the cutest little mikie-length pantalettes and the widest of circum-tent skirts. They are "O, Susannah," "Old Kentucky Home," "Listen to the Mocking Bird," "Old Black Joe" and "Gilt on Board the Gospel Train."

Few singing acts have been so well received, but Ralph Dunbar's Maryland Singers" has the merit of being clean, novel and handsome. The young ladies are Trix Oliver, Florence Sinclair, Margerie Netherout and Lorna Doone Jackson. Charles Frink helped on the banjo.

A first-night audience at Keith's held its breath at "Married," a carving sketch by Porter Emerson Browne, and for several minutes was not sure whether to be shocked or not. The scandal was taken out of the "Married" by the disappearance of a stage "clergyman." Rollicking fun was injected into "Married" by Homer B. Mason and Grace Keeler added a helping of beauty. The author scored an heavily.

A novelty is provided by the educated poodles of M. and Mme. Alf. W. Loyalo. One of the poodles is as smart as a ten-year-old boy in the graduating class at a grammar school. He is fast on an equality with the G. S. on E. And—wonder of wonders—one of the dogs cowed or afraid, all the dogs tail-registered delight in their work.

The headline act of the week is "A Raw Recruit," in which Joe Fields and Will Ramsay render us that preparedness is the question of the hour. Foley and O'Neil provide a per cent. of the dancing that will satisfy present-day audiences. Ruby Norton and Sammy Lewis furnish the remainder.

Novelty acts include "Ideal," a woman and her lower whose programed claim to be the "champion lady diver and contortionist in the world," does appear to be at least daring—in the home city of some of the most celebrated girl contortionists in America—and an entertainer described as "Whistling Nat Wills." Ideal's act in the tank is preceded by views of the lady in moving pictures.

Hassle Wynn, the latest duty of vaudeville, sang several new songs, wore a new suit each week and climatically received.

Bostonians who like vaudeville with class to it and all that the bill at Keith's now offers will find the entertainments that have been offered here in months. The playhouse has been packed to capacity throughout the week.

WALDRON'S CASINO—Direct from Broadway. Jack Singer's Bohemian Blue Ribbon Girls are the attraction this week. For the engagement here the same program as was presented on Broadway has been in a long run is offered. No change has been made in the cast. The entertainment consists of a one-act burlesque entitled "The Dope's Legacy," a passing review and the stage state Vaudeville during which James Tenbrooke appears as the famed operatic star Farnia, Eileen Sheridan as Nora Bayes, Martelle as Julian Eltinge, Amoia Pynes as Fritzi Scheff, and Jack Singer as Charlie Chaplin, with an odette of dancing ponies, and a big ensemble of Broadway beauties well remembered war drama, "Shenandoah," concludes the performance.

LOEW'S ST. JAMES

Patrons were treated to one of the best shows of the season yesterday. Heading the vaudeville program was Irving Cooper's playlet, entitled, "The System." In this sketch ten persons present a sensational drama. Others on the bill were Dooley and Rugel, who offered a high class singing feature, the Three Bobs, in an acrobatic novelty, and Bowers and Brown, in a high class singing and talking skit. Frances Nelson appeared in a photo play entitled, "Love's Cripple," which made a big impression on the large audiences. The Berlin Singers also offered their latest song hits.

FRANKLIN PARK THEATRE—The Victoria Four, a splendid singing organization, occupied the stage as the leading vaudeville attraction, followed by Collins and Manning, Bolger and Goodwin, and other selected attractions. The first half of the week will see the largest vaudeville show since the opening of the theatre. There are six acts altogether, including a big Comique of five people, the Exposition Jubilee Four, and the Circle Comedy Four. Every act on the program is a special feature in itself.

WOMEN SHOULD GET THIS HABIT AS WELL AS MEN

Don't eat bite of breakfast until you drink glass of hot water.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and healthy—that's the way to look. Natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only people would realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty, muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nervous wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and bespectacled boys should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

Inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of intestines the sour indigestible matter, the poisonous products, the undigested waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds, and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion, as well as those troubled very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store, which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is necessary if we would look our best outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the stomach feet of bowels do.—Advertisement.

ACCUSE WOMEN IN CHICAGO GRAFT CASE

By International News Service.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—A committee of the city council today started an inquiry into charges of graft involving Mayor Thompson, his wife, his sister-in-law, and a chum of Mrs. Thompson. The committee will hold its first session on Thursday to take up the charges and hear witnesses.

According to Mrs. Eaton's charges, Mrs. Rowe explained that the fund was for the support of Mrs. Thompson's sister, Mrs. Margaret E. Mivelaz, a widow. The contributions were to extend over a short period, Mrs. Eaton says she was told, or until Mayor Thompson could find a place for his sister-in-law on the municipal payroll, and then some method would be found by Comptroller Pike to return the money contributed.

The political bomb was set off at last night's council meeting when Alderman William E. Rodrigues, Socialist, demanded investigation of charges made by Mrs. Page Waller Eaton, lieutenant of Mayor Thompson during his campaign and his appointee as superintendent of social survey at a salary of $3,000 a year.

Mrs. Eaton charges, according to the alderman, that approximately one-third of her salary was extracted from her regularly by Mrs. Louise Osborne Rowe, commissioner of public welfare, and Mrs. Eaton's superiors.

Mrs. Eaton asserts the money was forced from her by Mrs. Howe with the explanation that she, too, was contributing and that the orders for contributing came from Mrs. Thompson, wife of the Mayor.

Why Suffer From Migraine or Sick Headache?

Dr. J. J. Caldwell says that this exceedingly distressing disease does not shorten life, but does not add to its comfort one bit. Sufferers from the affliction are condemned to undergo the periodic attacks every few weeks until they are sixty years of age, after which headaches are less frequent, and finally disappear entirely. Fallible measures are many, attacks are all but sure. But it is possible to suggest, while care is on the diet is the best gest, while care is on the diet is the best preventive measure. An attack may be prevented by taking two anti-kamnia tablets when the first symptoms appear, and one anti-kamnia tablet every two hours during the attack shortens it, eases the pain and brings rest and quiet. Anti-kamnia tablets may be obtained at all druggists. Ask for A-K Tablets. They quickly relieve all pain.

Three Children Are Saved from Coal Gas Death

Two girls and a boy, children of Michael Daly of No. 72 Chapman street, Charlestown, were saved from asphyxiation early today when Mrs. Annie Ruth, who occupies an apartment on the second floor of the house, detected the odor of coal gas and notified the police.

Patrolman Charles F. Bartrick and David H. Mitchell, a guard at the State Prison, who forced an entrance into the Daly apartments, found the children unconscious and sent them to the Relief Hospital, where it is said they will recover.

According to the police, Daly left home at six o'clock to go to work. In order that the rooms might be warm when the children, Catherine, sixteen; Annie, fourteen, and James, twelve, arose, Daly put coal in the kitchen range and apparently neglected to open the dampers.

A three-day bazaar in aid of the war sufferers in Poland opened yesterday in Mechanics Building, under the auspices of the New England Workers for Poland. Acting-Mayor Henry A. Hagan and Henry H. Chmielinski, president of the United Polish societies, opened the fair.

The honorary committee and the patronesses number more than 100 prominent Boston society people. There are thirty-four big sections to the bazaar, as well as musical and dancing entertainments.

Many of the workers in charge of the booths are in the costumes of Polish peasants and nobility. A majority of the things for sale have been donated to the Workers for Poland, or made by members of the committee.

In opening the fair President Chmielinski said: "The conditions in Poland today beggar description. Harassed by armies on all sides, the food supply has in turn been commandeered by friend and foe. In vast sections of the country women and children are living in the cellars of their ruined homes, scantily clad and suffering actual starvation. Even the relief work to date has only reached the fringe where the best suffering is a daily dole of carrot soup.

"This fair is an evidence of the beginning, but it is only a beginning. The time has come when to work effectively in Poland we must have a national organization, big and solid enough to have the confidence of the entire country, an organization which can not only raise funds, but arrange for the shipment of food, and which can ask for hearings in the chancelleries of Europe."

Today's program will include an address by Acting-Mayor Hagan, in commemoration of Washington's Birthday, and Polish dances.

PLAN FIGHT ON WILL OF LOWELL WOMAN

To support the claim that Mrs. Melinda W. Costello of Lowell was of unsound mind when she made her will at seventy-four years of age, contestants of the will plan to offer evidence that she frequently visited fortune tellers, that at one time she stated she had talked with "His Satanic Majesty" and that once she had said "every old man in Lowell was in love with her."

The trial will either come up before the Supreme Court at Lowell in April, or before a Superior Court jury.

Mrs. Costello left $1 to her sister, Mrs. Phebe Trider, and a like amount to her co-nephews, Osborne R. and Aubrey Witter. To Ruby V. Parent of Oakland, Cal., a niece, she left jewelry valued at $3,000, and to Enoch Wingby, a nephew, the residue of the estate.

DREAD SLANDER SUIT TRIAL IN WATERTOWN

Watertown society today considered with considerable anxiety the two suits alleging slander filed against Miss Adelaide Proctor, Wheaton Seminary graduate, anti-suffragist and descendant of one of the founders of Watertown.

The suits, which are for $25,000 each, were brought by Mrs. Helen C. Hartford of Parker street, Watertown, and Allen D. Craig, of Church street, Watertown. The news of their being filed was told exclusively in yesterday's AMERICAN.

Although Miss Proctor stated that she believed the suits to be the result of a suffrage controversy, prominent members of Watertown society scout this theory, and are looking forward with dread to the trial, fearing that they will be called as witnesses.

If the suits come to trial it is said that many of the family skeletons of Watertown will be exposed to the vulgar gaze, and one of the greatest scandals in the history of the town will result.

Miss Proctor is a graduate of Wheaton Seminary and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francis Proctor of Garfield street, Watertown. She is a descendant of Isaac Stearns, one of the founders of Watertown, and is a member of all the exclusive women's organizations in the town.

Mrs. Hartford, who lives with her husband in Parker street, is an ardent suffragist, and was formerly a co-worker with Miss Proctor on the Watertown Tribune-Enterprise. Each woman conducted a column devoted to opposite sides of the suffrage question.

Miss Proctor said that she believed the suits must have resulted from controversies over suffrage.

"I can't think of anything else that might even possibly have caused them to sue me," she said. "And why they should file their suits together and by the same lawyer I cannot understand."

Mrs. Hartford could not be seen, and her husband asserted when questioned that they had nothing to say. He admitted that he knew Mr. Craig.

Mr. Craig is a son-in-law of Thomas A. Dalby, president of the Thomas Dalby Company. Craig, who is about thirty years of age, travels for that firm. He also refused to make any statement.

BOSTON PEOPLE FLEE FIRE AT GRAY'S INN

Jackson, N. H., Feb. 22.—Over 150 guests, many of them from Greater Boston, were driven from Gray's Inn, one of the best known resorts in the White Mountains, when the huge building was burned to the ground.

After fleeing from the burning structure the guests formed a volunteer bucket brigade, while the temperature hovered around 25 degrees below zero.

The fire spread so rapidly that the guests were forced to leave their rooms without their personal effects. Many lost rings and other articles of value.

The Casino, which adjoins the Inn, was also destroyed.

The blaze started on the roof near the chimney and ate its way through the flimsy wooden structure as though it were tinder.

A few minutes after the discovery of the fire the entire third floor was aflame and the heavy snow on the roof seemed to have no effect toward stopping the path of the flames.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.—Advertisement.

HARVARD CLUB IN ACTION

Crimson Wearers Clash With New York Seven Tonight—Aberdeens Call Tomorrow.

HOW SEVENS WILL LINEUP.

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

TOM HOWARD'S Hockey Club of New York team makes its second Boston appearance of the season at the Arena tonight when it tackles the Harvard Club seven in an Amateur League game.

This contest opens a busy week of hockey. Tomorrow night the crack Aberdeens of Canada clash with the Arena seven; Friday night Newton High and Somerville High meet in their Interscholastic League game, and Saturday night "Hobey" Baker fills a Boston date with the St. Nick's against Dartmouth.

In its last game here with B. A. A., the Hockey Club of New York seven exhibited a superior knowledge of hockey, though lacking somewhat in teamplay. It is understood that since that combat Tom Howard, former Yale coach, has done considerable to improve the play of his outfit.

HARVARD CLUB AT BEST.

Harvard Club meanwhile has improved considerably and is now fit to do battle with the best team in the league. In the game with B. A. A. on has lost in Boston it constantly demonstrated it was superior to the seven which beat the Unitarians. Unfortunately though, Harvard Club lacked the necessary punch to get the winning tally over.

Reports from Canada have it that the Aberdeens are fully as strong as the seven which, when here a year ago, twice defeated the Arena team. Nash, the wonderful rover, remains with the Aberdeens and his playing should prove a delight to the hockey fans.

ARENAS SEEK REVENGE.

The Arena Hockey Club team is going into the game bent upon wiping out the defeats it suffered at season. Its last practice session indicated that the team is still traveling at a fast clip which characterized its play against Harvard Club and B. A. A.

Norman Small, the Arena goal tend, has been suffering from a bad attack of grip for a week or more and, as a result, has lost considerable weight. Indications are he has improved sufficiently to get in the game.

In tonight's league contest no change will result in the team standing regardless of which seven wins. Harvard Club is in third place, with a record of three wins and no losses, while Hockey Club of New York is last, with no wins to its credit and five losses. Even if Hockey Club win would not cause Harvard Club to drop, for Crescent A. C., the fourth team, has won but two and lost four.

STIFF COMBAT FOR HARVARD MERMEN

Harvard will swim the crack Columbia team in the latter's tank in New York this evening. The Morningside Heights natators have an evenly balanced team, with Vollmer, the Intercollegiate 100-yard record-holder, as their mainstay. The Harvard aggregation has been pretty well wrecked through scholastic and injuries, but Captain Fullerton, although suffering with a strained back, may get in against Columbia. The probable entries:

Relay—Harvard, Wentworth, Seymour, MacIntyre, Jenney; Columbia, Herbert, Walker, Lee, Vollmer.

40-yard dash—Harvard, Seymour, Jenney; Columbia, Herbert, Vollmer.

100-yard dash—Harvard, Wentworth, Fullerton, Wardsley; Columbia, Vollmer, Lee.

220-yard dash—Harvard, Wentworth, Rogers, Fullerton; Columbia, Lee, Vollmer.

Dive—Harvard, Blanchard, Munro; Columbia, Mosher, Mills.

Plunge—Harvard, Dixon, Munro; Columbia, Her, Lewis.

New York, Feb. 22.—Tickets for the Willard-Moran bout March 28 were placed on sale yesterday at Madison Square Garden. The promoters declare that business was quite brisk, but refused to give out the size of the sale. Most of the seats sold were of the cheaper variety. The prices ranges from $1 to $5. The sale will continue each week-day from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. until all the tickets are sold. There will be about 12,500 seats in the Arena, according to the present plans.

Hanover, N. H., Feb. 22.—Cornell's basketball team defeated the game from Dartmouth, 20-19. Ashmead and Rau were the stars of the combat.

Basket Balls

"TACKS" CONNELL, the South Boston youth who has been starting as a member of the Marlboro Y. M. C. A. team, has been stopped at last. It took the veteran Jim Crowley of Noddle Island to perform the feat. In the Company M-Marlboro contest the stocky centre of the St. John's Literary Institute was held without a basket for the first time this season.

* * *

SOMETHING must be wrong with the Marlboro team. They lost two games last week after defeating everybody in sight. They are leading the triangular series by a small margin as a result.

* * *

THERE is much talk in Roxbury regarding "Tack" Bowles. Any player who can score five baskets against Pollonsbee of the Lawrence Military A. A. can hold his own against any of them in this city.

* * *

BARRACLOUGH, the Lawrence star, was in good form Saturday evening. He scored ten baskets against Hale Carroll at Lawrence Saturday evening. It will be remembered that the Cambridge lad broke Hurdlegraph to three baskets in two games a few weeks ago.

* * *

STONE, who starred as a member of the U. S. S. Brooklyn last season, is a free lancer this season. He has been in more than a dozen lineups so far.

* * *

PADDY GRANT will make his initial trip to Marlboro this week as a member of the crack East Boston team.

* * *

TURNER and Rose of the First Corps Cadets will star in the lineup of the Phalen Phive tonight, when they line up against the St. Alphonsus five.

IF Shaw of Roslindale can play basketball as well as football Hallahan's side battle with the best team in the league. In the game against Shaw son has lost in Boston it constantly demonstrated it was superior to the seven which beat it. Unfortunately though, Harvard Club lacked the necessary punch to get the winning tally over.

Reports from Canada have it that the Aberdeens are fully as strong as the seven which, when here a year ago, twice defeated the Arena team. Nash, the wonderful rover, remains with the Aberdeens and his playing should prove a delight to the hockey fans.

Penn Wins Relay from Harvard at Hartford

Hartford, Ct., Feb 22.—Forty-five hundred persons saw "Cy" Young of Yale win the intercollegiate mile run in 4:41, and Mind of Harvard annex the intercollegiate 300-yard dash in 34 4-5 at the fifteenth annual athletic meet of the Second Division Naval Militia last night.

In the 600-yard steeplechase dash Riddle of Harvard stumbled at the tape and he and Scudder of the University of Pennsylvania were adjudicated with Cooper of Yale. The time was 1:20 and Scudder got first prize in a toss up.

Yale clinched the association cup when Baker finished first and Rolfe second in the 1,000-yard run, with Coop of Brown third. The time was 2:24.

Howard Drew, the Californian wonder, ran a special 75-yard dash in 7 4-5 seconds, with Morse of Brooklyn second and Treadway of Yale third.

Dartmouth defeated Brown in the relay race. Williams and Wesleyan were third, Massachusetts Aggies won over Trinity, Bowdoin triumphed over Worcester Tech, Massachusetts Institute of Technology defeated the Catholic University of Washington, and the spectacular relay race between Harvard and University of Pennsylvania was won by the Red and Blue in 3:31 2-5.

Dorian Lockwood, Lennon and Meredith ran for Penn, while Teschner, Wilcox, Biddle and Bingham represented the Crimson.

PLENTY OF SPORT AT FRANKLIN PARK

Though there is no good ice skating on any of the ponds coming under the supervision of the Park and Recreation Department, there's nevertheless some fine sport at Franklin Park. The tobogan chute is in fine condition, according to Jack Hoey, who has charge of it. The ski jump is also reported in fine condition for that sport.

Soccer Shots.

GROUND conditions have again interfered with games scheduled for last Saturday, and the managers of Boston clubs are officials of the different competitors have a lot to do to clear their schedules before April 30.

EDWARD P. DUFFY the press agent of the U. S. F. A. sport some line in Lynn, publishing a lengthy explanation in the Underwood case, but in the end stated that the earlier case was the precedent followed, and the term of suspension that of one year was the same.

THE general opinion in the Underwood matter is that a lighter suspension or a reprimand would have had a better effect. Even though the player did not speak the whole truth it is a fact that the charges were not sustained.

* * *

A REPLAY of the Fore River Pan-American game of October 9 has been ordered by the grievance committee of the Southern New England Soccer League and the referee practically refused to accept the decision.

* * *

It is apparent that the decision of the grievance committee did not meet with the approval of Manager James Wood of the Quincy Club, but at present the decision of the committee is final.

* * *

WILLIAM DALY of the Fore River F. C. and Manuel Silva of the Pan-Americans have been released by their respective clubs. The former was signed up under National Cup Form No. 279 and the latter Professional Form a-156.

THE team of the soldiers at Fort Andrews are anxious to arrange a few exhibition games for the near future. Address all communications to Manager Garigan.

WANT REULBACH AS WORCESTER PILOT

Worcester, Feb. 22.—Ed. Reulbach, former pitcher and manager of the Chicago Cubs is wanted as manager of the Worcester baseball team by Hiram S. Brewer, the new president of the club.

Mr. Brewer has been after Reulbach for the last two seasons and after an unsuccessful attempt to land Heinie Wagner, former captain of the Red Sox, he has closed negotiations with Reulbach. The latter is said to be considering the proposition.

If Reulbach comes to Worcester Mr. Brewer plans to have him take his turn regularly in the box, as well as manage the team. Mr. Brewer says that the former Cub star will be a big drawing card.

B. C. ATHLETES WILL HAVE GALA INNING

BOSTON POLES ARE LOYAL TO ZBYSZKO

The Polish admirers of Waldek Zbyszko have raised a pool of considerable size which they will ask Jack Curley, manager of Yousouf Hussane, to cover at ringside odds when the wrestlers, with their managers, will confer in Promoter Toohey's office today and go over points of dispute regarding the "toe-hold" and other details.

At 10:30 this morning 119 walkers, included among them nine girls, started the annual hike around the Hub which is held annually under the auspices of the Boston Young Mens Christian Union. The course takes the walkers entirely around the city and should be concluded about 4:30 this afternoon. Among the nine girls seven are from the Posse Gymnasium. The male walkers coming from the different branches of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. M. C. U. as well as other organizations and Harvard College.

JOSEPH DAVIS WINS PEABODY HOUSE RUN

The annual Elizabeth Peabody House Cross Country run was won by Joseph Davis from a field of twenty-two starters this morning. Abraham Krasher was second. The winner's time was twenty-four minutes slightly less than two minutes slower than the time made by Sol Jacobs last year.

PHILLY'S BEST BET EASY FOR LEONARD

Six Flyers Clash in Special at Amory Meet

The East Armory, on East Newton street, will be the scene of the annual track meet of the Ninth Regiment, M. V. M., this afternoon. These games usher out the local indoor season, so far as the seniors are concerned. The different events embrace plenty of clever contestants and the meet promises to be one of the gala hits of the season.

Chief interest centres in the special 1,000-yard run for the Mayor Curley trophy. Among the stars entered are Dave Caldwell, Henry Mahoney and Jack Ryan, B. A. A.; Joe Higgins, Holy Cross; Mike Devanney, Irish-American A. C. of New York, and Bill Bingham, Harvard. The scratch assures a race out of the ordinary.

NEW YORK BOXING

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—At the Broadway Sporting Club tonight George Chip and Young Abearn, classy middleweights, will meet in a ten-round bout.

FIVE ten-round bouts will be staged at the American Sporting Club tonight. The card: Carey Phelan vs. "Kid" Ghetto, Leo Johnson vs. George Brown, Andy Williams vs. Banjo Sharp, Chicky Shade vs. Gene Silvey, and "Battling" Champ vs. Young Augie.

EDDIE MORGAN, Jimmy Duffy and Joe Acevedo will appear in the ten-round bouts at the Pioneer Sporting Club tomorrow night. Morgan meets "Red" McDevitt, Duffy faces Bobby Moore, and Acevedo hooks up with "Bull" Thompson.

CHARLEY LEONARD, Benny's brother, will meet Artie Meiner in the main event of the Empire A. C. tomorrow evening.

BOWLING

ROBERT MILLEN, Who looks after the interests of the Millen's Specials ladies team, is very much peeved over the report that his outfit was beaten by the Winthrop Lady Elks. Mr. Millen claims it was the Elks' team, not the Specials, which was defeated, losing all four points.

GEORGE A. LITTLEFIELD is the latest Bostonian to announce his intentions of entering a team in the Atlantic Coast Bowling Association tournament, which opens in Washington April 3. Though he has not selected his men as yet, it is known he has his eye on a quintet of stars, and he will enter his picks in both candlepin and duckpin events.

MIAH MURRAY will send his City League team to Washington, and judging from what it has done this season, it is likely to figure big in both small pin classes. Besides being candlepin shooters of rare ability, McKee and Poehler, members of this outfit, are also exceptionally good duckpin artists.

BILL BEATTY has not yet decided whether he will enter his famous Charles River crew in the big tournament, but it is probable he will be found in line with the rest of them when the scores come around.

AT least two ten pin teams will represent Boston in the Washington classic. There are some clever big prep rollers in the Hub, despite the lack of interest in that style of game.

MAINE is showing unusual activity in the formation of teams for the big tournament. Already five quintets have been organized and it is almost certain several others will follow suit. Portland will be represented by two teams, while Deering, Bangor and Lewiston will start one apiece.

SPECIAL excursion rates have been offered to local bowlers going to Washington. One rate already quoted is $26.25. This includes transportation, meals en route and hotel accommodations for the party leaving Boston Friday, April 7, at 6 p. m., arriving back in Boston the following Wednesday morning.

REDUCTION IN PASS LIST FOR CHAMPIONS

President J. J. Lannin, acting in accordance with plans laid down by the directors, will greatly reduce the number of passes to be issued for the games at Fenway Park this season. The owner of the World's Champions has been very liberal in this direction, but now finds it forced by this position by the united action of the league's club owners.

WILLARD IN GOOD SHAPE

Tom Jones Spikes Story Fight Cannot Take Place March 25 —Will Soon Start East.

By International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—Heavyweight Champion Jess Willard is not only nearly recovered from his cold, but is in fine physical trim, so declares his manager Tom Jones.

The champion went for a long walk in Rogers Park yesterday afternoon, the first outdoor exercise he has taken since he broke off training ten days ago.

"All these bear stories about Willard are pure bunk," Jones said. "They have been spread by some scoreheads here, who formerly helped train him.

"Jess is feeling so much better today that I would not be at all surprised if we left for New York before the end of the week. He will do a bit of training here—two or three days, perhaps—before starting east.

"Right now all that is the matter with Willard is the hangover from a cold. It has really helped him in one way. He weighed about 225 pounds before he stopped training. Now he weighs around 250.

"It will be mighty easy for him to drop off another five or ten pounds before March 25, and that is all he has to lose, for he will fight at 240 or 245.

"These yarns about him weighing 300 pounds are all rot. He never weighed as much as 290 in his life, let alone 300."

WELLESLEYS START TRIP WITH VICTORY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—The Wellesley High basketball five began its Southern trip by defeating the Army and Navy Prep School team, 40-17, here tonight. Kelly and Keefe were the stars for the visitors.

NEW BEDFORD, Feb. 22.—Al Shubert of New Bedford, New England's premier bantamweight, and Johnny Ertle of St. Paul, Minn., champion of the class, clash in a twelve-round battle here this afternoon for the title.

The outdoor sporting set began pouring into New Bedford last night, while all incoming trains this morning were well laden down with boxing fans. The arena, where the two classy little fellows will meet, has a capacity of 3,500. This means the promoters stated they were confident the structure would be completely filled.

Shubert has lost but one of his seventy-three starts since he began boxing four years ago, and if it should come to pass that he should be the victor over Kewpie Ertle, this will prove one of the most sala days—certainly he followed by just about the noisiest night—in New Bedford's history.

Shubert is twenty-one; Ertle but eighteen. Shubert stands five feet, two and one-half inches, while his equally opponent is a tad inch under the five-foot mark. On the local boy also owns the superior reach. He is likewise the more experienced ringster and should a new champion be born here today it will not be fair to say that an unknown went over the plate; that a nonentity buzzed into prominence and relieved a seasoned champion of his crown.

As Ertle is only eighteen, and one of the hardest little boxing machines developed in recent years, it naturally follows that he's scarcely started on the down grade. On the contrary, Johnny is really just commencing his career. He was crowned champion in St. Paul, his home city, last September, when "Kid" Williams, then holder of the title, was disqualified for landing a low blow.

The fight, a brizzling one, was in its fifth stanza when Williams fouled Ertle and got disqualified.

Johnny Miller of Fairhaven, Shubert's manager, is confident that New England will own a new ring champion by dusk.

"Shubert is ready; in the best shape of his career," stated Miller to the AMERICAN correspondent this morning. "Al isn't scheduled a bit by getting down to 116 pounds. Why, he was practically at weight four days ago. We are not underrating Ertle, but he has got to prove the greatest little battler of modern times if he is to put it over Al."

Shubert looks "right." As for Ertle who is here with Manager Mike McNulty, he is in his customary good shape. Since coming East last September Kewpie has fought seven battles in New York, Brooklyn and Philadelphia and banged as many victories.

Ertle is excellent of winning and quite hopeful of scoring a knockout. He is to receive $1,500 for his afternoon's performance, it is reported. Hector McInnes of South Boston will referee the fight.

Mandot, Saylor and Lewis Score Triumphs in Ring

LAST night was very busy in the ring and three Boston favorites, Joe Mandot, Young Saylor and Ted (Kid) Lewis, were bracketed. Mandot registered a big surprise when he outboxed Johnny Dundee in their 20-round battle at New Orleans. Saylor came to life and knocked out Leach Cross. Stories of the three battles follow:

New Orleans, La., Feb. 22—Joe Mandot, lightweight champion of the South, in a 20-round bout here last night, obtained the decision over Johnny Dundee of New York. It was a splendid fight throughout.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 22.—Wilbur Saylor of Indianapolis knocked out Leach Cross of New York in the fifth round in their bout here last night.

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 22.—Ted (Kid) Lewis, the English dreadnought, had a shade on Jimmy Duffy of Lockport in their ten-round battle, which was far too clever for the local favorite.

Belmont Spring Puts on a Gay Sport Menu

Today's carnival at the Belmont Spring Country Club gives promise of being the biggest outdoor sporting event of the Winter season in this part of the country. Already the committee in charge of the events have received a large number of entries for the tobogganing and ski racing events and the other numbers, including the curling matches, promise to fill nicely.

From 9:30 a. m. until 6.30 p. m. there will be "something doing" constantly in the open. At 6.30 p. m. dinner will be served in the bungalow rustic and regular dining rooms and after dinner there will be dancing until eleven. In addition, the pond will be illuminated and skating can be enjoyed, as well as the moonlight night those who enjoy tobogganing may do so, under natural conditions. The committee was planned to make it the greatest Washington's Birthday celebration in the history of the club.

Between 10:30 and noon there will be continental and fancy skating exhibitions, as well as curling matches between teams representing Arlington, Belmont, Boston, Brookline, Cambridge, Lexington, Malden, Medford, Somerville, Waltham, Watertown, West Medford and Winchester. At 11 o'clock Tobogan and ski races will be held on the snow shutes on the hill opposite the clubhouse.

At 11:30 a special event in the form of a skating race for the caddies will be held. From noon until 2 o'clock a special luncheon will be served after which the curling matches will be continued. At 3 o'clock giant pushball contests will be held between teams of caddies. Then comes dinner and the evening enjoyment.

Haughton Scores Hit at Winter League Dinner

For jollity and wit; in fact, for a good time generally, last night's dinner of the Winter League, its sixth annual February spread, was the best in its history.

Close on to 150 members attended and among the guests were Percy D. Haughton, the new president of the Braves; Bob Fitzsimmons, the former heavyweight champion, and his son, Bob, Jr.; Walter (Babbit) Maranville, the Braves' famous shortstop; "Polley Bill" Sweeney, the newly appointed baseball coach of the Boston College nine; John Morrill, a star first sacker of yo olden days; James B. Connolly, the noted author; Eddie McHugh and Judge Clifford Greva of Houston, Tex.

President Haughton said he believed a closer relationship between player, fan and owner would be of great benefit to the game; that the three could well afford to be frank with each other, that if a player had a grievance it would be better to make it known at once and have it corrected rather than go on through the season without complaint, and thus destroy his value to the club, and if the fans had any complaint to be heard from.

Mr. Haughton gave notice that it he had any ideas at variance with either of these two, he would state them frankly.

President Campbell called for a silent toast to the late Daniel Noonan.

GALA SHOOT AT LINCOLN.

THE RABBITS' COLUMN

By Walter J. Mcgraw ville
HORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

If hosing at Harvard needed anything in the way of a boost, the presence of John L. Sullivan, a real champion; Percy D. Haughton, president of the coming champions; Francis Ouimet, another champ, and George Wright, celebrated in many sports, would certainly accomplish it. These gentlemen are to be at the ringside of the bouts Friday. There will be almost as much interest in them as in the contests.

* * *

"Wild Bill" Donovan is on his way. When he gets his entire squad at Macon he will have thirty-three players to pick from. "Bill" evidently intends to give his crowd the once over. Preaching smaller squads for training and late starts didn't reach New York.

Now that "Wild" Smith is in line with the rest of us, the fans can expect much from the Braves. Smith is due for a good season. If he has it and can stop that ball the way he used to, well, we will look pretty good.

* * *

The Winter League is very much alive. While not very active this Winter, the members still proved themselves "dyed-in-the-wool" fans. Organizations such as these are a benefit to the game. May the league live long and prosper.

* * *

Konetchy has good courage. He picks the Boston teams to win in their respective leagues, which puts a rosy view upon the World's Series money stuff. Should Big Ed prove a prophet, well, you know the answer. Better get busy now with orders for seat reservations. That is, if you are one of those who agree with him.

* * *

Cleveland still commands attention in the news columns. Now that the club has a new president, the worry comes over the man to be chosen as manager. Cleveland fans are long-suffering. Here's hoping the club has a little luck! It is about due.

* * *

George Davis will undoubtedly be given permission to finish his course at Trinity College. The "once-a-year-no-run" pitcher will help us a lot when he joins the team in June. George is always in condition, so there is little worry over the delay in reporting.

* * *

I saw comment made upon the difference in coaching methods at Harvard. Fred Mitchell has a plan of his own which, when under way, is bound to bring out the available material. Then it rests upon the question of selection. In this particular Fred is some judge of ability. To be chosen by him carries a distinct compliment as to one's ability to play the game of baseball.

* * *

Some of the Braves will have a chance to renew acquaintances in Macon, Ga., when they gather there to go South to Miami in a body. These boys will also get a peek at the Yankees, who are now to occupy their rooms at the Dempsey and working out at the park there.

* * *

President Lannin still has faith in Joe Wood's ability to "come back." If he can show form during the Spring workouts, the chances are there will be no difficulty in my believing that Wood will fall to show then it will be either the minors or retirement for the "Smoky One."

Tom Lannin Says Wood Will Stick If He Shows Form

BROCKTON, Feb. 22.—Thomas Lannin, business manager of the Boston Red Sox, the principal speaker at the baseball night of Seville Council, Knights of Columbus, stated in his speech that President Ban Johnson of the American League was personally informed by Manager Carrigan that Pitcher Hanslo Johnson, who pitched in the Federal League the past two seasons, had been awarded to the world's champions.

Mr. Lannin also gave it out that his brother, Joseph J. Lannin, owner of the Red Sox, would retain Joe Wood if the veteran right-hander succeeded in regaining his 1912 form. Mr. Lannin said he was confident Tris Speaker would sign his contract before reaching the training camp at Hot Springs, Ark., although his old salary of $15,000 had been cut.

O'ROURKE SAYS HE'S THROUGH FIGHTING

Bridgeport, Ct., Feb. 22.—James H. O'Rourke, president of the defunct Eastern Association, gave it out last night that he has decided to withdraw his appeal from the decision of the National Board of Arbitration permitting the merger of the Eastern Association and the New England League.

The owners of the Bridgeport and Pittsfield clubs, O'Rourke said, had informed him that it would be useless to try further to block the progress of the merger.

WOOD WORKING OUT IN COLUMBIA CAGE

New York, Feb. 22.—Assuring all inquirers that they did not expect to become students at Columbia University, Joe Wood of the Boston Red Sox and Rogers Hornsby, former star of the Cincinnati Brookfields, are having their first work-outs of the season at Coach Andy Coakley's cage.

LOWELL CATCHER IS HURT IN EXPLOSION

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 22.—Word has reached here that Catcher Joe Kilhullen of the Lowell club was severely injured in a mine explosion at South Bethlehem, Pa., and his ballplaying days are probably over. It is said Kilhullen must consent to the amputation of at least one finger.

PERCY D. BOOSTS BOXING

Haughton Glad to See Sport Thriving at Harvard—All Ready for Finals Friday.

"PREPAREDNESS" has always been a sort of middle name for Percy D. Haughton, favorite son of Harvard, the world's greatest football coach and now blossoming to full glory as a baseball magnate.

Therefore, it is not at all surprising to know that Haughton has come out staunchly in favor of boxing as an undergraduate sport at Harvard.

"I wish to commend the boys for their splendid work in reviving interest in boxing." Haughton has written Manager "Billy" Robinson. "I consider it an art that every boy should be well versed in before finishing his education. Personally, I have tried in former years to stimulate interest in this sport on account of the many great values that may be derived from it."

Many other prominent men, including alumni, have written Robinson praising the adoption of boxing into Harvard's sporting curriculum. Included in this number is the only John L. Sullivan, who will be the guest of Lansing R. Robinson, father of Manager Robinson, at the Boston City Club and will open the tournament Friday evening with a five-minute instructive talk on the manly art.

The first bout is expected to be started at 8:15 o'clock in a room provided by the Harvard Union, where the boxing ring of the B. A. A. which has been borrowed, will be set up. While the officials who are to referee have not yet been announced, it is likely that Jimmy Walsh and Al Delmont, the featherweight professionals who handled the preliminary bouts, will officiate.

The entries for the semi-finals and finals follow:

115-pound class—Heffenger, Meyer.
125-pound class—Bernier, Howe.
135-pound class—R. Campbell, Cummings, Rogers, Richardson.
145-pound class—Cahill, Hannett, Brown, W. Campbell.
158-class—Geer, Cobb, Aldis, Whitney, Weatherhead.
175-class—Weatherhead, Hartley.
Heavyweight class—Bigelow, Kirkpatrick.

TUFTS BOXMEN ARE TOLD TO CUT LOOSE

Coach Jack Slattery has been working with the Tufts baseball squad in the cage exactly a week. Satisfied his pitchers are now out loose to a certain degree, he has ordered them to begin "shooting him." Slattery has an even dozen hurlers and is confident he will succeed by having his usual satisfactory corps.

Their Married Life

Helen and Warren Make a Week-End Visit to an Old Friend

Copyright 1913, by International News Service.

"Well, there's the train," said Helen, in surprise, looking out of the car window as they neared their destination.

"Yes, but remember the warm weather we've been having," said Warren, who was in an excellent humor. They were on their way to stay over Sunday with an old friend of Warren's who had moved out of the city some time ago and had taken up poultry raising. Helen had accepted the invitation from the Whitehalls to please Warren, as she did not know Mrs. Whitehall very well. But Warren had been great friends with Joe Whitehall, in fact they had joined the Masonic order at the same time, and it had been because of Joe's health that he had decided to move to the country.

"We get off at the next station," said Warren, reaching for the bags and pulling down Helen's long coat. Helen was gazing out reflectively over the river. What a beautiful country this was, with its tiny villages perched like doll houses along the banks of the river. Warren had told her that they were almost buried in a tiny little village far away from anyone. It was even impossible to reach the station by train from the city, and as Helen and Warren got off at Highville, they looked about for the trolley that was to take them nearly the rest of the journey.

A PROPOSITION

"Where is the trolley for Brigg's Crossing?" asked Warren of a man who lolled against the station looking at them curiously.

"Trolley's not due for half an hour," he said, moving his pipe to the other side of his mouth and continuing to gaze at Helen.

"Where do we get it?"

"Down the road a ways. Where you people calculatin' on goin'?"

"We want to go to Springdale."

"Springdale's three miles beyond Brigg's Crossing. You'll have to get a rig to take you over from there."

"Yes, we knew that," said Warren. "Why don't you get a rig from here? Mr. son could get you over there. It's only a matter of five miles."

"Let's do that, dear," said Helen, looking dubiously down at her patent leather shoes that were already caked thick with yellow country mud around the soles.

"All right, trot him out," said Warren good-naturedly. "How much will you charge us?"

"A dollar and a half, and it's worth it, too; the roads are fierce."

Warren grinned and watched the man amble off. In about five minutes he returned and said that his son would be along in a jiffy. In the time Helen and Warren were seated comfortably in the tonneau of a neat little machine Helen was regretting the fact that they had promised to come. She resolved to make the best of it, however, and the ride through the crisp country air was delicious.

"This is Springdale," volunteered the youth who ran the car, as they turned into a crooked village street, and Warren, with sundry directions and several remarks from interested spectators, finally turned into the road that led by the Whitehalls' house. Cheery lights shone from the windows, and as the car stopped outside the gray frame house the door was flung open and the Whitehalls ran down the path, Mrs. Whitehall in a dainty little house gown covered by a big-bibbed apron and a kitten in her arms. Helen was cheered instantly and answered the cheery greetings warmly.

Helen took off her things and then found her way down to the cheery living room. There were pictures on the brown papered walls and a piano stood in one corner. Books and magazines were scattered over the centre table, where a lamp burned brightly, and the white-breasted kitten was curled up in a big chair. Helen could see a table spread for a meal and could hear the sounds of preparation for dinner from the kitchen beyond. A tall young man rose from a chair and held out his hand cordially.

"I am Mrs. Whitehall's brother," he volunteered, laughing at Helen's surprise. "I don't suppose you have ever heard her speak of Dick from Arizona; well if you have, I'm good man."

"Oh, that's right, you two haven't met," said Mrs. Whitehall, coming in and explaining apologetically.

"We have now," returned Dick, "and suppose we get better acquainted, Mrs. Curtis? If you will come out in the kitchen and get up on a chair I'll volunteer to clean your shoes and make them as good as new. Will you give me some milk, Girl?"

HER SHOES POLISHED

Warren and Mr. Whitehall came back as Helen was having the final polish, and Warren related with much gusto the fact that they had been to the butcher's and that he had gone home for supper when they reached here.

"We had to rap on the window to have him come out and give us some steak. Gee! this certainly is a small town. Bill Perkins is a fine chap, though. We had quite a talk."

"I'll have supper ready in a few minutes now," volunteered Mrs. Whitehall, "that is, if you will all go into the living room and leave me in peace."

"May't I help?" quirled Helen.

"No, dear, go in with the others. Dick is dying to entertain you. I'll call you if I need you." And Helen, with a conviction that she was going to like the Whitehalls, followed the others into the next room.

Another incident in this series will appear here soon.

Puzzle

(Find the Girl Who's in Love with the Man They Are Talking About)

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service.

THAT'S easy—according to the soothsayers in magazines and advice stories. For if a girl turn up her nose even more than it is, grow a dreamy indifference into her drooping eyes, take no word in the talk, put a delicate yawn back into her lips, and idly swing one foot—all meaning that she is far away yonder, a bit bored and hearing nothing—when the name of a man is being talked around and about in a chattering group—this extravagantly dreaming young person is in love with the man they speak of. So remember that and don't give yourself away.—NELL BRINKLEY.

In Our Wonderful World

SIR THOMAS BODLEY himself drew up the "statutes" for the famous library founded by him and opened in 1604, and his orders were that "the keeper shall open and close the library doors at certain hours, varying with the season, and that at these times prescribed hours he shall cause to be rung the warning bell of his ingress and egress, that men may shun the discommodities of repairing thither oversoon, or abiding there long."

The keeper was to see that a register of gifts should be kept, "written with a special and comely, and withal to be exposed where it may be still in sight, for every man to view, as an eminent and endless token of our thankful acceptance of whatsoever hath been given, and as an excellent inducement for posterity to imitate these former good examples."

The founder ruled that before any graduate or any person of note would be given the privilege of the Bodleian library he should appear before the Vice-Chancellor or his substitute, and there in the presence of the library keeper he should take the oath of fidelity to the library, by which he promised that he would "conform himself with modesty and silence and use both the books and everything appertaining to their furniture there with due respect to their longest conservation."

King James the First was so appreciative of the work of Bodley that he granted letters patent the year after the library was opened, naming the library after the founder, whom he later knighted, and whose name, said he, should have been not Bodley, but Godley. The Bodleian Library, despite a fire, of its contents in the reign of Edward the Sixth, and the sacking of ploughed University Library, and has been added to by many magnificent gifts. It now contains more than 250,000 volumes and 20,000 manuscripts.

It is now generally accepted that the character of climates is variously affected by the presence or absence of trees and their vegetation. In his British Association address Sir Charles R. Lucas noted that climates become both hotter and colder when the surface of the earth has been bared by the cutting down of trees; they become drier or moister with the destruction or planting of trees; and healthfulness or unhealthfulness may be determined by the removal or retaining of the forests. The Canadian Northwest is cited as an example. Where once ploughed land does not retain snow and ice like the unbroken prairie surface, but it is more exposed to moisture and the heat of the sun. As a result, there has been perceptible agricultural improvement, with an extension of the wheat belt considerably farther north.

A flash of lightning lights up the ground for one-millionth of a second, yet it seems to us to last ever so much longer. What happens is that the impression remains in the eye of the retina for about one-eighth of a second, or 10,000 times longer than the flash lasts.

To Overcome Winter Complexion Troubles

If the chill air causes your skin to dry and scale or become unduly red or spotted, before you go to bed spread a thin layer of ordinary mercolized wax over your entire face. Remove next morning with warm water. This is the ideal complexion treatment, for the mercolized wax gently absorbs the dead particles of surface skin, gradually and without discomfort. This gives the underlying skin a chance to freshen and show itself. In a week or so the new and young-er skin is ready in evidence and you have a really matchless complexion. Naturally all its defects disappear with the discarded cuticle—as chaps, roughness, blotches, pimples, freckles, blackheads. Usually an ounce of mercolized wax, procurable at any druggists, is enough to renovate even the worst complexion.

Wrinkles send bother; you can prevent and see this simple face wash. Powdered saxolite, ½ ounce, dissolved in a pint of witch hazel. Just one application will at first even the deepest lines.—Advertisement.

An Unfailing Way To Banish Hairs

(Beauty Notes)

Ugly hairy growths can be removed in the privacy of your own home if you get a small original package of delatone and mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the hairy surface. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then removed and the skin washed and every trace of hair will have vanished. No pain or inconvenience can result from this treatment, but be sure you buy real delatone.—Advertisement.

The Kind of Man to Fall in Love With

Beatrice Fairfax Tells What to Seek If the Ideal Prince Charming Fails to Appear

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"A WOMAN'S life is made for her by the love she accepts," said George Eliot. At least half the feminine tragedies in the world are due to the fact that women permit themselves to love the wrong sort of men.

Most of us are lonely, most of us have a longing for affection and companionship and possess the deeper maternal instinct implanted by nature.

Most of us have, too, an ideal of the man we might love. He is to be fine and splendid, strong and gentle and able to call out all of our best in response to the beautiful love he gives us. And most of us find little ideal of our Prince Charming a thing we cannot even approach.

We get tired of waiting and the citadel of our heart opens to the first besieger who comes along after we have become convinced of the fact that Prince Charming has taken a road that will never lead him our way.

Why can't women be true to their ideals?

Pressure is brought to bear from all sides. There is the longing in a woman's heart; there is the knowledge that all about her are mating couples while she is alone; there is a world ridiculing her for being "too critical" and reminding her that soon her youth will be gone and then she will no longer be desired.

For all these reasons women fall their own ideals and permit themselves to drift into loving the wrong man.

"He who mine heart would keep for longe
Must ride a gentil manne and stronge,"

says an old verse. The wisdom of the ages lies within its doorline. What you will to the hunger for love, to the pressure of life and to the fear of loneliness—but if you would find any happiness in the love you accept be sure it comes from a man who is at once gentle and strong.

Gentleness means kindness, tenderness, understanding, and that unwillingness to give pain which will make a man faithful and tender. Strength means determination to shield and power to make that determination good.

The man who is gentle and strong will not yield to his own ignoble desires and betray the woman he loves to or for him even boasting weaknesses. He will not hurt her by ill faith nor fail her when she needs him; he will not disgrace her by dishonest practices nor shame her because the desire for amusement blinds him to the fastidiosity of life.

The man who is gentle and strong respects the fact that when a woman loves she becomes dependent on love and her lover. He will not give her moments of pain and despair.

Life is a chain of moments, but those moments have the continuity of the linked chain and are not regularly spaced, scattered and at waste. Your charming pink, pony (alternating scoundrel, your improvident philosopher, your inveterate flirting brute—these and many others of like imperfection may call to your emotions, may fascinate you for a point where you fancy blindly you love them. But believe me you betray the citadel of your heart to a man who is not trustworthy, who is not SAFE to love.

The man to love is he who is gentle and strong. Where you find one who is both these things you may gladly and joyously with all the best you have to give. In turn he will give you tender faith, wise guardianship and loyalty to all the best gifts of your womanhood.

Was She Convinced?

Needless to say he was an extraordinarily intelligent dog—all dogs are in the eyes of their adoring mistresses; and Fido certainly was no exception.

One day, however, a friend of Fido's mistress was bold enough to dispute this point, whereat the aforesaid mistress was much wroth; then, hoping to vindicate his reputation, she began talking to the curious little creature she called her dog—just to show his almost human power of understanding.

"Does doggie want to tum for a walk?" she asked.

"Bow-wow!" replied the dog.

"Of course 'oo does; but 'oo just had a bath, and 'oo might catch cold."

The canine "bow-wow!" was repeated.

"If 'oo stays at home I'll div' 'oo piece of cake."

Again the dog barked shrilly; and the eyes of his mistress flashed triumphantly.

"What kind of cake," she inquired, "Why sponge cake!" Then, turning to her friend: "Didn't you hear him ask what kind of cake?" she exclaimed. "D'you know, I really believe he understands every word I say."

The Manicure Lady

She Gives Out Her Views Concerning Poets and Suicide

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"THIS is the kind of a day I wish I was rich," said the Manicure Lady. "Gee, but didn't I hate to come to work this morning?"

"It is a fierce day," agreed the Head Barber. "If somebody don't commit suicide today I miss my guess."

"Whoever it is, it won't be me," declared the Manicure Lady. "Life is too sweet to leave until the doctor says you just got to go."

"That's so," said the Head Barber. "I thought once when I lost a lot of money at the track that I would kill myself, but I either didn't have enough courage or I had too much. It's hard to tell which. And here I am, happy and getting along fine. And I know my wife ain't married to some other guy, which she might be now if I had put myself out of the way."

"Brother Wilfred thought he would kill himself once because the old cent wouldn't let him have ten dollars," said the Manicure Lady, "but he thought better of it, and now he is doing pretty good with his poetry. He sold three pieces to a new magazine which has just started."

"Maybe it won't last long," said the Head Barber, gloomily.

"I don't suppose it will," admitted the Manicure Lady. "If anything that brother Wilfred mixed up with ever lasted over a week I guess I would have a fainting fit. The poor boy is a hoodoo to himself, and sometimes I think to the rest of the family."

"If I had a brother hanging around the house, writing poetry daytimes and getting free lodging nights, I would come right out and tell him to try his hand at something else or find another place to live," said the Head Barber.

"The old cent wants him to get out and hustle," said the Manicure Lady, "but mother is all the time taking his part. She thinks that some day he is going to write a great song and get rich.

"He told her that, and she believes it, because one of her uncles made a lot of money writing songs, and she thinks Wilfred takes after him. Goodness knows who he does take after. Thank goodness it ain't me."

"I had a uncle that wrote some poetry, only he made money at it," said the Head Barber. "It ought to be a grand game if you can make money at it. They tell me that guy Shakespeare made a lot of dough."

"Yes," said the Manicure Lady, "Mister Shakespeare done pretty good at writing, and so did Lord Longfellow and Alfred Whittier, I guess, but them gents got along because they was wise fish. Their beans was higher developed than Wilfred's head, but he don't believe it, and nobody can tell him nothing. I don't know what's going to become of him."

"Oh, I guess he'll get along all right," said the Head Barber. "It was the real poets that had all the sorrow in their lives. Your brother ain't enough of a poet to draw much hard luck. I guess a little hard luck wouldn't hurt him none, though."

"Don't you go wishing him none now!" warned the Manicure Lady. "Don't you go wishing that he was a barber, George. He gets the old cent awful sore, just on me, my brother, and he never done you no wrong."

QUESTION HOW LONG WAR CAN BE FINANCED

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Talk of early peace in Europe has faded into an echo. There is more pessimism now as to how long belligerents can raise money to pay war expenses, and also how long they can first without funds when cash and credit gradually run out.

From London come reports that Germany is weakening financially.

Such statements have been cabled constantly in this connection. But the German issue likely will be able to continue the struggle indefinitely, so far as economic resources go.

The latest statement of the Imperial Bank of Germany shows gold reserves amounting to nearly 1½ marks, an increase of $30,000 in a week.

The institution reports that its gold reserve, covering circulation and banking notes, increased from 38.1 per cent. to 38.5 per cent. in a week. Its private deposits increased 116,000,000 to 1,742,600,000 marks.

A mark amounts to a little less than seven U. S. cents, according to normal times. It has greatly depreciated in foreign estimation, as the decline in exchange values indicates. Germany is approaching the lowest record point clearly shown. It has been going down, as sterling exchange rates have risen.

Germans have not been able to publish figures of their production activities in New York, as the British have done, to stabilize exchange. It is said many German banks are on the verge of failure.

This statement comes to Wall Street from various sources, but particularly from London.

It is believed by many American bankers that the allies will win in the end because they have the most money as well as the most ships and the most men.

WHAT THE TEUTONS CLAIM.

The Teutons do not admit that they can be beaten under any circumstances, and when the financial superiority of the foe is pointed out, they answer that at all events they are getting daily credit at home.

While there is talk in Washington of taxing munition makers to pay for the expense of putting the United States in a position to defend itself, Germany is preparing to levy a heavy contribution on all concerns or individuals who are making large profits because of the war. The government will soon pass taxation measures which will provide with about $125,000,000 a year new revenue.

In Berlin, it is expected, in addition, the government will order new loans and plans to reserve fifty per cent. increase in revenue for future taxation, if it does not take the entire amount designated.

All over the world it appears that those who are getting rich through the war are regarded by legislators and tax collectors as the ones who should yield the most to the public treasury.

In regard to German war loans, the next one will include an issue of four and one-half per cent. short notes, redeemable at par, and which are expected to sell at home at a price not later than 99. The loan will be announced, it is expected, at the end of March.

TO RESTRICT IMPORTS.

The idea has obtained that the British blockade has practically stopped Germany from getting any supplies from the outside. But, astonishing to say, the saving of money by eliminating imports appears to be as much of a question at Berlin as in London.

On Saturday last Dr. Reinhold Sydow, Prussian Minister of Commerce, announced to the Diet:

"In a short time the imperial government will issue a decree regarding our foreign trade, limiting imports to indispensable articles and aiming to stimulate the exports of goods we do not need."

PLANT JUICE HAS CURED ENGINEER

Robert Irwin of No. 428 Ferry St., Everett, Had Stomach Trouble for Four Years.

If the digestive organs are not properly performing the work of digestion and assimilation of food, then nutrition, which is absolutely necessary to the very existence of other diseased parts, will be lacking and there can be no permanent relief. When bodily nutrition is normal, the stomach digests the food, the blood absorbs and carries nourishment to other parts of the body, causing the various organs to properly perform their functions. Nature has supplied a remedy in the ingredients of Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach medicine. It tones, strengthens and invigorates the digestive organs, the kidneys and intestines. It is purely vegetable and its cleansing, purifying and reconstructive qualities are so pronounced that benefits are noticed in the food from the first day.

That this is proven conclusively it is only necessary to listen to the statements of such people as Robert Irwin. Plant Juice a fair trial. One of the most recent cures to be made by Mr. Robert Irwin of No. 428 Ferry Street, Everett, who is a well-known stationary engineer employed by one of the largest companies of this city. He states:

"For four years I had suffered with indigestion and dyspepsia, and my stomach was in such a wretched condition that I could not digest my food and had dreadful pains and gas. I was told that I had acidity of the stomach. I had headaches, dizzy spells, my liver was torpid and sluggish, which made my complexion yellow and sallow. I tried a hard jump in the pit of my stomach like a ball of lead. I could not sleep at night. I was a nervous wreck, could not work, and spent a lot of money trying to get relief and never got any benefit until I started to take Plant Juice. It certainly did the work in my case, and I now have no more aches or pains, can sleep right and can eat anything of food and digest it. My complexion is wonderfully improved and I am glad to state, for the benefit of others who suffer that I am now a well man, entirely cured by Plant Juice."

Plant Juice is on sale at 25c. a package here in Everett at Mac's drug store, corner of Washington and Main Streets, where he is daily meeting his local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

Boy Scouts' ball, while the operators conferred at the McAlpin.

Before the joint session Mr. White declared rumors to the effect that his organization had accorded recognition to, or was giving aid to the International Workers of the World.

The joint conference was opened by Mr. White, who outlined the ten demands and their explanatory clauses of the mine workers. Thomas Kennedy, of Hazleton, followed, and T. Dempsey of the Scranton district, James Mullen, of Hollister and C. C. Bonner, all members of the miners' scale committee, followed.

Mr. Warriner, counsel for Lehigh Company arose to reply, a hush fell upon the assemblage. He began by one of the miners, Mr. Warriner said that he, speaking for the operators, was only too glad to hear the miners' demands, and that the operators rejoiced at the opportunity to enter into the whole problem in detail in an effort to arrive at a conclusion agreeable to all concerned.

The operators, he added, were willing to look at the demands, from every angle, and were willing to stand for reasonable labor and pay, and might go a step further and give consideration to the opportunities for the social and physical betterment of the miners.

WARRINER IS CHEERED.

In conclusion he said that every demand set forth by the miners should be fully considered in the most careful consideration.

No sooner had Mr. Warriner taken his seat than the mine workers rose and vigorously applauded him.

This was the first time in the history of these conferences that the demands of the miners were not promptly rejected by the operators. The delegates were at a loss to account for this change of front on the part of the operators.

Mr. Warriner then moved that the whole conference be referred to the sub-joint committee. It appointed W. J. Richards, representing the independent operators; W. J. Richards, president of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company; S. D. Warriner of the Lehigh, and Morris Williams, prominent coal operator.

Mr. White named himself, Thomas Kennedy, James Matthews and John Dempsey to represent the miners.

BOTH SIDES AIM TO AVERT BIG COAL STRIKE

By BOERSIANER.

An unnecessary interlude is the item naturally applied to what was done—or rather not done—on Thursday.

In the essential signification the market was nil. From that viewpoint the governors would better have declared a holiday from Friday afternoon to Wednesday morning, for there is no sense in stock exchange sessions the smallest for a full session in months. Knowing-looted interests so few that they stretched the rule of indifference the inane character of the transactions was in keeping with the dullness. The exceptions themselves could well have been postponed till Wednesday. Texas Company shares, which declined 3¼ points, are part of prospect favored with the attention of an outside pool which becomes active on untimely days. The same is true of United Alcohol, famous the inopportuneness.

European financial districts are not especially gracious toward American finances. If anything ungracious can be said of the financial commentary situations here, it is avidly and lengthily discussed abroad. Yet the view that can be said in Europe the disparagement of anything financial or commercial American that does not quite so bad as certain American croakers, for revenue only, will say long.

A staple pessimistic topic with the relatively speculative investment is what will happen to the steel and iron industry in general, and to the Steel Corporation's interests in particular.

The latest issue of the Statist of London answers the insincere question by stating that while European needs will be much lessened, the trade thus lost will be made good by the increased domestic requirements. Henceforth railroads and shipyards will be busily engaged. The earnings of the former are increasing by leaps and bounds, and the extra traffic that at first was stimulated by the European war is being added to by the enormous crops that have to be carried, and by the improvement in the general business of the country. Consequently, the companies will need a great deal of steel in order to cope with the growing traffic.

DEATHS.

POMEROY SEES BASEBALL IN THE MOVIES

Jesse Pomeroy, famous "lifer" at the Charlestown State Prison, saw moving pictures of baseball today for the first time in his life. It is the first time he has seen anything in connection with baseball for the thirty-nine years he has been in the institution. Two reels of the Red Sox at Hot Springs last year were shown to the 740 prisoners at the holiday entertainment.

Edward L. Riley, secretary of the Red Sox; Manager Carrigan and Players Janvrin, Henriksen and "Patsy" Donovan were on hand at the show to see themselves in action.

Jesse Pomeroy was delighted with the performance and in addition to seeing his first game of baseball, he saw Charlie Chaplin in the movies for the first time in his life. Referring to the Boston Sox, the life prisoner said:

"They certainly have speed. I don't see how anyone could beat them. 'Smoky Joe' Wood puts that ball over as if it was shot from a cannon, and the way Tris Speaker can knock it up is wonderful. That national game sure has improved since I played up some since I saw it played last."

MAYOR AND FAMILY IN RICHMOND, VA.

Mayor James M. Curley is in Richmond, Va., today with his family and friends, after stopping at Palm Beach long enough to call upon former Mayor Fitzgerald. He is homeward bound, and will be in New York on the 25th, two days earlier than his original schedule. He had originally planned to end his trip in New Orleans, but stopped short in the Old Dominion city.

Mayor Curley is expected to be back at City Hall, but changed his plans.

SECRET FEATURE FOR BACON BALL

Two new features, one of them a secret to be revealed only at the ball itself, will mark the annual ball of the W. & A. Bacon Company Mutual Benefit Association at the Paul Revere Hall tomorrow night. The secret feature will take the place of the grand march. The other feature will be a series of dancing numbers, solos and groups, by six little girl pupils of Lilla Vile Woman.

BELIEVE IOWA WILL GIVE UP TRACY NOW

The Boston police believe that the State of Iowa will surrender Frank J. Tracy, who is serving one to ten years at Fort Madison, Iowa, for breaking and entering. Tracy, who is accused here of the murder of Samuel Cohen, a Junkman, in a basement in Springfield street, South End, has just been identified as the man wanted in Boston.

Captain Armstrong of police headquarters said today: There is no reason why Tracy should not be returned here to be tried with Delevan J. Rogers for the murder of Cohen. The Governor of Iowa has the power to pardon Tracy. Tracy could then be brought here. There would be no precedent for such action. On November, 1908, George Jett, alias William Jones, was pardoned by Governor Cummins in State Prison when tried in District County for robbery. The New York police had an indictment charging Jett with murder in the first degree. February, 1910, Jett was pardoned by the Governor of Massachusetts and returned to New York where he was tried for murder.

MRS. GWATHMEY WINS A DIVORCE

Austin, Tex., Feb. 22—Mrs. Lelia G. Gwathmey has been granted a divorce in the District Court here from her husband, J. Temple Gwathmey of New York. In addition to alimony she will get $25,000 and a portion of her husband's realty holdings. Mr. and Mrs. Gwathmey had been married twenty-three years. They have three children, the youngest being J. Temple Gwathmey, Jr.

CLOCKS RESTING AT EAST BOSTON COURT

As in the mythical valley where the lotus eaters recline, the flight of time is unmarked in the East Boston police station, and court house. The clocks went out of business three years ago, and have been permanent quiescent since. The police say that they have repeatedly asked the Commissioner of Public Works to have the clocks repaired.

TODAY being Washington's Birthday and a legal holiday, stock and commercial exchanged in this country are all closed.

Let Us Help Governor McCall to Bring About an Honest Constitutional Convention

THE other day the AMERICAN was obliged to comment upon the fact that the cities and towns of this Commonwealth are not permitted by law to spend money for the purpose of employing counsel and experts to defend the rights of their citizens in contests with the public service corporations, where there is a conflict of interest between the citizen and the corporation; while in strange contrast to the powerlessness of the cities and towns is the absolute power of the corporations to spend any amount of money they please in the contests with the citizens they are supposed to serve.

Now, the power of both the cities and towns and corporations to appropriate money and to spend it comes alike from the Legislature, the alleged representatives of the people.

And the money which the cities and towns and corporations appropriate and spend comes alike from the citizens who are involved in these contests.

Why, therefore, this difference in power? Why this partiality of the Legislature for the corporation. Why has the new Legislature limited the power of all citizens and given unlimited power to corporations, whose stockholders may not only be non-residents of the district involved, but non-residents of the State and may even owe allegiance to another flag? The answer is that this situation exists because under our present constitution we do not have representative government. Our alleged representatives represent us only in theory.

Let us take another example. A great many of our cities and towns reluctantly consented to the merger of certain street railways upon the solemn promise made by the street railways, in consideration of this consent, that the street railways would not raise their car fares. This was a solemn contract, as moral and binding as a contract can be. But now the street railways are deliberately, unblushingly violating it as if it were a "mere scrap of paper."

The wonder and pity of it is that they are actually able, under our laws, to repudiate these obligations of honor.

But if the shoe were on the other foot, if the cities and towns made a contract with the corporation which they wanted to repudiate, could they do so? By no manner of means. Even the Legislature cannot give the cities and towns a right to repudiate their contracts, for the rights of the corporation in these contracts are protected by the Constitution of the United States itself. If a city or town should undertake to violate its contract with the Bay State Street Railway, it would be obliged to face the sheriff of the Commonwealth and his posse. If they were not strong enough to enforce the contract on the behalf of the railway, then the State militia would add its power to the sheriff's posse. If the State sheriff and his posse and the militia were not strong enough, then the United States marshal and, finally, the whole regular army of the United States would come down on that recalcitrant city like wolves on the fold.

Why the difference between the rights of cities and towns and the rights of corporations in the obligation of the contracts between them? Why is the whole power of the State and nation behind the contract which favors the corporation, while there is not even due process of law for the enforcement of a contract which favors the city or town? Worse than that, the Legislature even provides a convenient method by which the street railways may apply to the Public Service Commission for permission to increase their fares, in violation of their promises.

The selectmen of Wellesley have introduced a bill which would take away this legal facilitation of dishonoring promises. It will probably find an unmarked grave in some committee. Who would have thought that such an inequality could exist to make the passage of such a bill necessary?

But this is not the whole story of inequality and injustice between the masses of our citizens and the highly organized privileged few. Recently, when a dishonest Coal Trust, or an equally oppressive Ice Trust, was raising the prices of the necessaries of life, some of the cities and towns wanted to buy coal and ice in large quantities and sell them to their citizens at cost. Then it was found that even the Legislature could not help to loosen the grip of these two vicious trusts. For the Supreme Court declared that the Legislature had no power which it could delegate to the cities and towns to compete with these monopolies.

These are typical, not exceptional, instances. The whole body of our law is rotten with these inequalities and unjust distinctions. Our taxes are all least fifty per cent. greater than they ought to be on account of all this injustice and discrimination. Nobody knows how much it has affected the cost of living, but certainly it has contributed more to the increased cost of living than any other cause.

Is this condition fixed, unalterable, eternal? Certainly not. Our citizens have it in their power to change it all, as the Swiss people changed their even more desperate situation. Our remedy is the device by which the people of Switzerland changed the most corrupt government of Europe into the purest democracy in the world, a government that is not only the most democratic on earth, but is so virile and intelligent that it has compelled respect for its neutral rights and boundaries in the very midst of the world's most terrible clash of arms, when neutral rights and neutral territories are being violated at the will of the strongest.

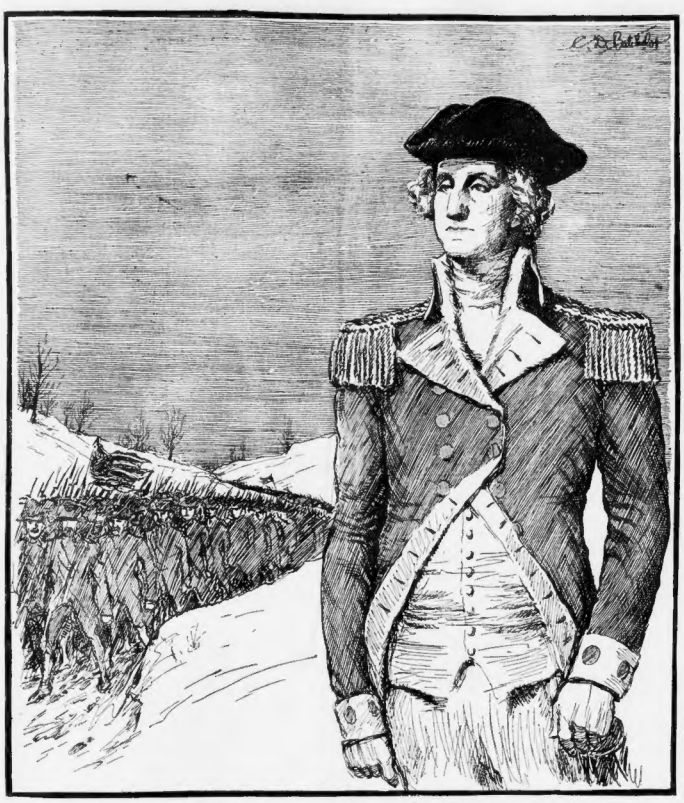
The Swiss initiative and referendum is the means by which the control of their government can be brought back into the hands of the people again. The coming constitutional convention is the opportunity for us to amend our State Constitution so that we may have this great reform by which we ourselves, acting as a kind of great town meeting, may pass a good law which a bad Legislature persistently refuses to enact; or may veto a bad law which a bad Legislature has corruptly passed in defiance of public opinion.

Let us watch the steps by which we approach the coming constitutional convention in Massachusetts, in order that we may be sure that this convention will give the citizens a chance to vote on the question of establishing the initiative and referendum.

Let us beware of any tricks by which the corporations may prevent this convention from submitting the initiative and referendum to the people of the State.

Let us watch Governor McCall and follow his lead so far as he leads us in the right direction in establishing an honest constitutional convention. He will need our assistance so long as he is with us, for the woods will be full of guerilla sniping at him whenever he urges anything that looks like a REAL and honest, satisfying constitutional convention.

A BELIEVER IN PREPAREDNESS



He was a BIG man and a GREAT man. His greatest quality was his power to go on fighting, undiscouraged, after being beaten over and over.

His common sense was shown in everything he did and said. The following from his eighth annual address, delivered 120 years ago, ought to interest Americans now:

"To an active external commerce the protection of a naval force is indispensable. This is manifest with regard to wars in which a State itself is a party. But, besides this, it is our own experience that the most sincere neutrality is not a sufficient guard against the depredations of nations at war."

The War and the Birth Rate

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

PART ONE

AT first sight, the question, can men be killed more rapidly by machinery than by hand? would seem to have only one possible answer.

The horrible "curtain of fire" which can be poured into and stretched over the hostile trenches, until every square foot of the ground has been smashed and pulverized as if by gigantic trip-hammers, would seem to spell absolute annihilation for every living thing that falls under its deadly shadow.

The literal tons of both ammunition and explosive projectiles fired in the course of a single day's battle; the significant fact, for instance, that a modern army requires at least one double-track railroad in perfect working order and run to its full train capacity to supply it with ammunition alone, would look as if the slaughter produced by this avalanche of metal would exceed anything ever dreamed of before.

But when we come down to the actual cold figures of killed and wounded, we find ourselves most happily disappointed in this shuddering expectation.

With all its thunder and sputter and scientific frightfulness, the death storm which is now raging half over the world is not killing any larger percentage of the men on the firing line than did the cruder and simple methods of fifty or a hundred years ago, and far less than those of two hundred or three hundred years ago.

Incomplete Returns

Of course, the returns are still far from complete, and none of the belligerents are, to say the least of it, overstating their losses, but slaughter by tens of thousands has become such a commonplace that most of the war departments have become calloused and post their list of casualties almost as coolly and as much a matter of course as if they were baseball scores or stock market quotations.

The latest compilation from all official sources on both sides, corrected and checked by experts according to the known probabilities, shows a total of lives lost, killed outright, of something like a million and three-quarters.

A Peculiar Fact

This is enough to stagger belief and defy realization in the mass, but the warring nations claim to have over twenty million men actually in the field, and as this demon's game has disgraced the earth seventeen months and long ago celebrated its first birthday in hell, this makes only a loss of about six per cent. per annum, only a little higher than that of our own Civil War, so that the risk to the individual soldier is scarcely more than it was at Gettysburg or Antietam.

So far as we are able to see at present the individual soldier's chances of being killed are about the same in this war as they were in the Civil War, and a little greater than they were in the Franco-Prussian or the Russo-Japanese and the Boer wars, all of which averaged about 4 per cent. per annum.

As to the prospects of this war's effects upon the future of the nations involved, the mathematical probabilities are in one sense reassuring, although in another disquieting.

Even adding 50 per cent. for good measure to the known casualties and making the loss of the five greatest nations involved a million and a half a year, this actually represents only one-fifth of the babies born during that period. And after deducting the deaths for the year, the net gain of these three hundred and eighty millions of people would be in the neighborhood of two million souls, or 30 per cent more than the number lost in battle.

To put it in a little different way, the slaughter, horrible as it sounds, is only about four times as great as the normal death rate for adult males in the countries concerned during the same period.

Inklings and Thinklings

By Wex Jones

It's a wonder the New Haven jurors didn't get so mixed up that they brought in a verdict finding themselves guilty.

Physician declares that a diet of beer and bologna causes bow-legs in babies. Is that all?

"French smoke pipes to keep nose warm," says a headline. Weren't those little, sawed-off dudeens always known as "nose-warmers"?

Husband, deserting his wife, leaves behind a note begging her to be kind to the cat. Perhaps he felt that the cat deserved kindness more than he.

Had John Paul Jones been President Wilson, his famous reply—by mail—would have been:

"I haven't begun to write."

Connecticut man reports that he saw a rabbit with two horns. Perhaps he means that he saw it after two horns.

For lack of dyes, we may all have to dress in white. How mad this would make the laundrymen!

See that a new party may be formed on a platform of "Peace, prohibition, petticoats," the last word meaning woman's suffrage. Might have peace with prohibition, but doubt if it's possible with petticoats.

George Washington's Birthday

The Life of a Great Man Is Full of Lessons for Everybody —From the President of the Country Down to the Least Citizen

Copyright, 1916, by the Star Company.

MANY kinds of courage are in human beings. George Washington, whose birthday you celebrate, had pretty nearly all kinds. He had the courage of the hero of Balaklava, but millions of men have that. It is the courage that risks death under excitement. It is in all animals, from the mosquito up to man.

Washington had MORAL COURAGE. That is infinitely more rare than the courage which faces a cannon. His moral courage is usually illustrated with the old story of the cherry tree. He was not afraid to tell his father the truth. A majority of us are afraid to tell the truth, EVEN TO OURSELVES.

The BEST courage possessed by Washington was the courage that makes a man get up and go on after being knocked down once, twice, twenty times.

The United States is inhabited by people, of whom a majority are knocked about at least once a day.

To be disappointed in your hopes is to be knocked down.

To be bullied by your superiors is to be knocked down.

To fail when you felt success certain is to be knocked down.

What we all need more than anything else is to learn from Washington how to fight, be beaten, fight again and keep at it until at last you win.

Washington's history is an almost uninterrupted line of defeats. He was beaten and BEATEN. His supporters were not all by any means the heroes that we would like to think them—they had a habit of running away, of getting tired of fighting, of proving disloyal to their leaders.

The soldiers under Washington committed many outrages, which must have been more discouraging to him than the defeats inflicted upon him by the enemy.

BUT NO MATTER WHAT HAPPENED, WASHINGTON GOT UP AND WENT ON FIGHTING. He would do anything, endure anything, but HE WOULD NOT STAY ON THE GROUND.

That is why he became the George Washington who is now "The Father of His Country." The simplest way to be like George Washington is never to admit defeat, never lose heart, never to give up—always to get up and go on fighting. You are never really beaten, remember, until YOU say so.

The characteristic of Washington, next in importance to his courage, which put the nation on its feet, was his COMMON SENSE, which he left to his nation as a great inheritance, and which has KEPT the nation on its feet.

A sample of George Washington's common sense is written underneath his picture on this page. It ought to be read by those who are asking themselves whether the United States needs to be prepared for war.

Washington could look ahead, he could IMAGINE a fire —without waiting to have his eyebrows singed. Some "pacifists" must have not only their eyebrows singed, but their coattails burned, before they can believe that fire is possible.

Think of George Washington, not as some sublime being, jumping from victory to victory, and from one glory to glory.

Think of him as a powerful, slow, determined COMMON SENSE man. He is the cornerstone of a great republic, because he combined within himself the qualities that the inhabitants of a republic need.

There was no quality in him that YOU who read this may not develop in yourself if you will.

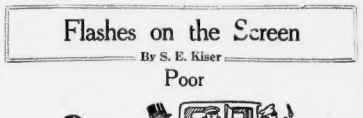
He simply would not admit that he was beaten.

He did what he knew that he ought to do. And he used common sense.

Flashes on the Screen

By S. E. Kiser

Poor



HE is envied for the pile
Of money that he has made;
His daughters can dress in style,
His debts are easily paid,
But he never goes hurrying home at night
With a care-free heart or an appetite.
And his conscience makes him afraid.

THERE is nothing that he enjoys
But the money which he has won;
He starts at the slightest noise.
He's a man whom children shun;
There are mills and shops that have made him rich.
But he finds no pride in talents which
Are displayed by his only son.

HE has millions on millions piled,
But the joys of his youth are fled,
It is ages since last he smiled,
He approaches his meals with dread;
Because he is rich there are women who weep,
And while others are resting in peaceful sleep
He rolls in his guarded bed.
